Other Police Court Cases

Charged with breaking and entering the camp of Jhonore Bonin at Willow Dale and the larceny of a suit case full of clothing from William J. Killoy, Roy Paul C. Weber, who claims the state of Missouri as his home, was arrested last evening by Officer William H. Cullinan of Draught and arraigned before Associate Justice Fisher in the local court this morning. He pleaded guilty and at the request of Mr.

SCHOOL PLANS INJURIES FATAL

Builders Exchange Send Protest to Council and School Board

The Builders' exchange is opposed to the awarding of the contract for the new high school plans and has sent a letter of protest to the municipal council. Members of the exchange believe there are just as competent architects in Lowell as elsewhere and that the council ought not to go over the heads of home architects. If the contract for the plans, it is argued, went to out-of-town architects the chances are that out of town builders would be awarded contracts and the local builders believe in home industry. The following is a copy of the letter which was handed the mayor yesterday by Alvah H. Weaver, secretary of the exchange: Lowell, Mass., Aug. 5, 1915. To the Mayor and the Municipal Council of the City of Lowell. Gentlemen:—At a meeting of the members of the Builders' exchange of Lowell held this morning, it was unanimously voted that your honorable body be notified that the exchange protests against the awarding of the contract for the plans of the new high school to an out of town architect. They believe that there are competent architects in the city of Lowell, as can be seen in looking over the other school houses and various buildings about the city, the plans of which were drawn by local architects. Trusting that this will be brought before the council as soon as possible, we remain

FIND GOLD IN SEWER

ASSAYER PRODUCES METAL FROM
STREETS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6.—Placer mining for gold in the city heart of the city's business center! Such was the alluring vision suddenly flung before the eyes of a gang of laborers engaged in sewer construction work on 3th street, between Filbert and Arch streets yesterday.

AFTER LEE'S SURRENDER TO GENERAL GRANT

The soldiers of Grant at Richmond, began without order to salute him with cannon, but he directed the firing to cease so that it might not unnecessarily wound the feelings of the prisoners, who, he said, were still our countrymen. Bless his memory.

How many of us daily, for want of thought, hurt each other unnecessarily.

Those who live under the same roof and at work can spoil each other's day by little sharp thorns of speech.

Warm weather customers require utmost alacrity and courtesies for they are often hurried to catch a car or impatient to meet an engagement.

KAISER'S TRIUMPHANT ENTRY INTO WARSAW

With Warsaw and Ivangorod Captured and Fall of Riga Expected, Austro-German Onslaught Has Reached Its High Tide in the East—Semi-Autonomous Rule for Poland

LONDON, Aug. 6, 12.10 p. m.—With the great Russian fortresses of Warsaw and Ivangorod captured and the fall of Riga, the capital of the Baltic provinces, imminent, the Austro-German onslaught has reached its high tide in the east and the next step will be the German emperor's triumphant entry into the Polish capital. That event is likely soon to be followed by the announcement of a united and semi-autonomous Poland, embracing not only the territory wrested from the Russians but Austrian crown land of Galicia.

Russians Fighting Desperately
Meantime the Russian armies are fighting their way backward toward Russia proper, inflicting blows on the invaders wherever possible, trying to stem them off the railway running north and south, in order that the ends of the German nippers may not meet and, in closing, bring disaster to Russian arms.

The position of the army of Grand Duke Nicholas now is a matter of so little importance, as the occupation of Warsaw is believed to be a prelude to the greater purpose of enveloping the retreating forces.

Russians Wreck Bridges
Petrograd reports show the grand duke has retired to the right bank of the Vistula both at Warsaw and Ivangorod, destroying the bridges at both points, and contesting the German advance across the river.

Back of the retreating Russians is the vast morass of central Poland, with few railways and primitive roads, making virtually impossible a quick movement of guns and supplies, while back of Warsaw, the only fortress available as a rallying point for the Russians is Brest-Litovsk. Thus the Russians are menaced by Gen. von Buelow's columns heading southward and by Field Marshal von Mackensen's southern army bending northward.

Fall of Ivangorod
The fall of Ivangorod proper, forecast in the Russian retirement from the west of the city, is officially reported today in bulletins from Berlin and Vienna.

The occupation of Warsaw now is centering attention on a series of important events that are being arranged. First will be the selection of a German governor. Reports indicate the appointees will be a German prince, possibly a son of the German emperor, or an Austrian archduke, who will be vested with authority akin to that which Napoleon gave to his brothers and to his marshals as kings of occupied territories.

Berlin reports that a council on Sunday will formulate a proclamation declaring Poland to be a semi-autonomous state under joint Polish and Austro-Hungarian rule. This conforms with a recent decision of a Polish congress held at Piotrkow, Russian Poland, which proposed a joint Polish and Austro-Hungarian rule with a separate Polish army, and the fullest Polish autonomy consistent with the strategic interests of Austria-Hungary.

MEXICAN OUTLAWS RAID VILLAGE OF SEBASTIAN

Attacked North of Brownsville—Conference Between Lansing and Pan-American Diplomats

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Aug. 6.—Mexican outlaws today raided the village of Sebastian, 37 miles north of here, killing a man and a woman. United States cavalrymen from Harlingen, 12 miles distant, have gone to Sebastian.

CONFERENCE RESUMED
WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The six Latin-American diplomats working with the American government to bring peace to Mexico had a series of conferences at the Argentine embassy today before they resumed their conference at the state department. They covered their deliberations with the same secrecy as was thrown about yesterday's meeting.

Gen. Carranza's refusal to meet the other factions in a peace conference was the first obstacle to be disposed of. It was believed the diplomats considered that question at their preliminary conference. The plan as it stood at the close of yesterday's conference was to send Carranza a last invitation, backed by the moral force and authority of all Pan-American to join his adversaries in an effort to have Mexican settle Mexican affairs themselves.

Today's meeting was expected to go far toward developing the alternative. The Latin-American diplomats are understood to favor for president of Mexico some man who will represent the great majority of Mexico's inhabitants who are not fighting under any military leaders. They consider that the fighting forces represent but a small percentage of the population.

Secretary Lansing said that there might be some public announcement tonight, dependent upon developments. A telegram, forwarded to Secretary Lansing from Carranza's commissioner of the treasury in Mexico City says $0 relief posts had been established where food was being distributed to the poor.

BATTERY OFF FOR BORDER
FORT RILEY, Kan., Aug. 6.—Battery D, Sixth field artillery, will leave here this afternoon at 3 o'clock on a special train for Nogales, Ariz., for border patrol duty.

RAILROAD LINES REOPENED
BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Aug. 6.—Railroad communication between San Luis Potosi and Tampico has been reopened after being out of commission nine months, according to official announcement by Carranza army officers in Matamoros today. This gives Carranza direct railway connection between Avas Calientes and the Gulf of Mexico.

TRIBUTE TO MRS. WILSON MORE TROUBLE IN HAITI

SCORES OF CHILDREN AND MANY
HER GRAVE

ROME, Ga., Aug. 6.—Scores of children and many adults paid tribute to the memory of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson today, the first anniversary of her death, by placing flowers on her grave. The hour from 9 until 10 o'clock this morning was set aside for the children. Many of them went to the cemetery with only a single blossom which they placed among the mass of floral tributes sent by organizations and individuals in many parts of the country.

The Ellen Axson Wilson Memorial association held services at the grave later. Dr. G. G. Snyder of the First Presbyterian church, who officiated at Mrs. Wilson's funeral, led the services.

WITH GOVERNOR'S PARTY

Lowell Men Back From the Panama-Pacific Exposition—Great Praise for Governor Walsh

The Massachusetts club at San Francisco, which is composed of former residents of the Bay state, including several from Lowell, has put in a bid for the purchase of the Massachusetts building at the exposition, the building to be used as a club house when the exposition is over.

The fact that the bid has been submitted is vouched for by Representative Henry Achin and Jean Baptiste Pelneault, two Lowell men who were members of Gov. David I. Walsh's party to the exposition. The Lowell men returned last evening and are related with their trip. A royal welcome was accorded the party wherever it stopped enroute, and at the exposition there was nothing too good for the Massachusetts visitors. Several former Lowell men were with them.

REPORTER SHOT LOOTER

Troops Patrol Flood Section at Erie, Pa., as Result of Reports of Looting—Victims Buried

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 6.—Troops of the state constabulary patrolled the flood section today and increased forces of workers in their search for bodies, went further into the masses of wreckage piled along Mill creek by Tuesday night's flood.

Sensational rumors of looting during the night kept the police busy, and early today it became known that Guy Fowler, a reporter on the Erie Dispatch had shot a man who was alleged to have been seen taking articles from a house that had been abandoned by its occupants. The man was later taken to a hospital. Other reports of looting could not be verified. An effort was made to suppress looting with a stern hand.

Additional offers of pecuniary assistance from outside sources came in, but the committee declined all of them, with the assurance that the city could take care of its destitute.

C. A. Emerson, Jr., acting chief engineer and his assistants sent here by the state board of health, faced a hard problem in their efforts to keep down disease. In addition to the bodies of human beings believed to be in the debris it was thought that numbers of cattle, hogs and sheep had been caught in the flood and their decaying bodies would soon become a menace. The ripping up of sewers and the destruction of the sanitary system throughout the damaged area caused the engineers to bend their efforts in that direction while frenetic men fought typhoid fever was carried on with the assistance of the city's health authorities.

Ten funerals were to take place today and several tomorrow. Six of the fifteen persons reported missing have been located and their names taken from coroner Hanley's list.

HANGED TO POLE

Ed. Berry Taken From Officers by Masked
Men and Lynched

SHAWNEE, Okla., Aug. 6.—Ed. Berry, colored, charged with two cases of criminal assault and suspected in connection with ten others that have occurred here in the last three years was taken from officers early today and hanged to a telephone pole at the scene of one of his alleged crimes.

Berry was secretly brought here for trial from the penitentiary at McAlester. When the train arrived and the deputy sheriff and his prisoner alighted they were covered by revolvers in the hands of a dozen masked men. The officer was disarmed. Ten or twelve automobiles filled with masked men then appeared and Berry was quickly conveyed to the Beard street bridge.

When the rope was adjusted Berry was questioned about his crimes and asked if he were afraid. In each instance he nodded his head affirmatively. In every case Berry's victim was a white woman.

Following the confession Berry was hanged in the presence of about 75 men, all masked, after which the crowd dispersed.

After daylight Berry's body was cut down and removed to an undertaking establishment. An inquest will be held. Since July 11 Berry had been carried from one place to another and finally lodged in the penitentiary at McAlester for safe keeping. It being feared because of the general indignation over what was said to be the delay in bringing Berry to trial, that he would be lynched.

RUSSIANS FLEE FROM RIGA

Evacuation on — $25,000,000
for Removal of Warsaw Mills
and Factories to Interior

LONDON, Aug. 7, 1915. —The Russian war office has set aside $25, 000,000 to help pay the cost of the removal of Warsaw mills and factories to the interior of the empire, says the retrated correspondent of the Times.
The Warsaw retreat is less the direct outcome of engagements on the front line and in the Novo Gecorlowsk region than the result of the strategic situation as a whole. In the region of Ostrovetz and the mouth of the Skvira the enemy has succeeded in cutting our rear communications and depriving us of the opportunity of re-grouping while by their capture in the Lomza district which is lying in the hands of the Germans even the Vistula front is strategically important. The Germans are striving to effect a deep envelopment

of our forces on the Vistula river.
Should this offensive be further developed it possibly will be directed against Dabyszek and Brest-Litovsk
from the north. It is quite likely Field Marshal von Mackensen will transfer his troops from the Chelm district to cooperate in this attempt.

Another factor was the auxiliary operation on both banks of the Vistula against Lwow, intended to cut the Ivanograd-Lwow line.

"Today's news warrants the conclusion that the fate of Riga is sealed.
The country on this side of the Mus-sa, where fighting is proceeding at present, does not afford the Russians a line capable of stemming the enemy's advance but is suitable merely for rearguard actions. The river, Delta is intrinsically a more formidable obstacle, but as Riga is situated on both sides of the river, it does not afford opportunity for effective defense.

Two corps of Gen. von Barlow's army already have reached the Mus-sa. The evacuation of Riga is in full swing. The streets are packed with dense crowds and the stations are relabeled with those anxious to leave.

The evacuation of Mitau was effected by the post office employees and the police last Saturday. German residents were greatly delighted at the arrival of their countrymen. They had made no secret of their sympathies."

Milady's Boudoir

The Coiffure and Face

Women of today do not have the luxury of growth of hair that was manifested in older times. A fact that was undoubtedly due to the treatment to which the hair was subjected. The scantiness of hair is a source of confidence when it comes to arranging the coiffure. When such is the case, one does not wish to adopt artificial hair, one must then rely upon the use of a headress or hair ornaments to fill in the vacancy and detract from the scantiness.

The arrangement of the coiffure,
however, cannot make a woman beautiful unless the face expresses that attribute. Perhaps little lines are more distressing than those that appear beneath the eyes. They may be due to age, habit or weather, but from what ever cause steps should be taken at once to arrest their progress. There is almost impossible to get rid of them. If one must use wooden shelves
then an air and best bath at least once a week. Remove the shelves and bathe them at once in boiling water.
Keep them at the boiling point for half an hour, set in a hot oven for an hour and then rub all over with a bottle and keep tightly corked. This should be put on the face before going to bed at night, best working it well
in. When a fresh application is made allow it to dry on.

In making the morning toilet after the face wash, an eighth teaspoon of lotion and water is poured into a bowl. This is applied to the face, neck, hands and arms, allowing it to dry.

water, soap and borax. Remove the shelves and allow the box to cool and dry before using. If the shelves are also wood care must be exercised, for
in these damp, water soaked shelves bacteria. These invisible foes are difficult to destroy and it is only by constant vigilance that you can combat them.

Wooden shelves absorb odors, and once becoming impregnated with them, it is almost impossible to get rid of
them. If one must use wooden shelves
then an air and best bath at least once a week. Remove the shelves and bathe them at once in boiling water.
Keep them at the boiling point for half an hour, set in a hot oven for an hour and then rub all over with a bottle and keep tightly corked. This should be put on the face before going to bed at night, best working it well
in. When a fresh application is made allow it to dry on.

As dishes used, perfectly dry and clean;
keeping the temperature of the box at a low degree and the air dry, will lessen the danger from bacteria.

See that the food is put at once in the refrigerator. If this is left out to be nibbled by the fly that has come from fever-infested spots covered with seams, some of these must necessarily adhere to the damp surface of the meat. The cold in the box is powerless to stop the growth of germs, it can only retard it, and retard or later
the food becomes unfit for use.

"Foods cooked or broiled should not stand around the kitchen, but should be put at once in the cooler apartment of the refrigerator. Partly de-cayed food should never be placed in the refrigerator. You do not succeed in "keeping" it and you fill the wood air that settles upon the food in the box."

WALLOPED THE CROPS

CORN LAIN LOW BY STORM AT THE CITY FARM—POTATO PATCH UNDER WATER

Wednesday's storm raised havoc with the potato and corn crop at the Chelmsford street hospital, and Supt. Conley stated this morning that an acre of potatoes was totally ruined by the rain. He said the whole crop on this land is under water, but the loss will not be great inasmuch as this was low land and he was only experimenting with potatoes. This acre of land was never planted until last year on account of being low, and chances are it never will be again.

The wind and rain also raised havoc with the field corn, a lot of it being blown down. Mr. Conley, however, states the institution will not suffer from the loss of this corn for the crop this year is exceptionally large.

The three bathrooms in the women's infirmary are completed and now the inmates of the institution are enjoying the use of the baths. The large cement coal pocket which has been under construction for some time will be finished tomorrow and by the first of next week the employees of the public buildings department will start on the construction of the pistol target at the Draught range.

This will be a costly job inasmuch as a cement barricade will be constructed overhead the target and a large pit will be dug underneath and covered with cement. The target will be constructed by Major Colby T. Kittredge, who has been appointed by the adjutant general to look after its proper construction in compliance with military regulations.

Contract Awarded

The contract for 8000 plants for the park department was awarded by the purchasing agent to Morse & Brins, whose bid was $56.40. The other bids submitted were as follows: Whittier & Co., $93.30; Harvey B. Greene, $102.

Woolens will be higher—they cost 20 per cent. more today than a month ago, and are going higher. Canvases, linings and trimmings are starting to soar. I can assure the man who orders a suit now, even though he does not take it for two months, of the lowest prices that he may ever live to see, values considered. The greatest July business in the history of my Lowell store at a time when everybody is yelling, proves that MITCHELL, the Tailor's values are all that I have said they were.

Blue Serges—Four weeks ago, I made a purchase of 65 full pieces, about 3500 yards, from one of the leading serge mills in this country, thirty-five pieces of which were delivered today. The price on these now, of $10.00 and $12.50, will mean a saving of from $7.00 to $10.00 a little later on, when the woolen famine, which is about to overtake us, arrives.

See my windows for Blue Serge display. Colors I will guarantee for the life of the cloth—or a new suit

IN NUMBER OF STUDENTS IN 1914 OVER 1913

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Increase of nearly seven percent in the number of students in American colleges, universities and technological schools in 1914 over the previous year is shown in the annual report of the federal commissioner of education, which has just been made public. The figures are 216,493, compared with 202,231 in 1913.

The report shows that men still outnumber women in higher education. There were in colleges 139,373 men in 1914 and 127,120 women, as compared with 128,544 men and 73,557 women in 1913. Despite higher standards of admission and graduation, college enrollment has more than tripled since 1880.

Benefactions to colleges and universities during the year totaled $26,610,917, an increase of about $2,600,000 over the year previous. Six institutions received benefactions in excess of a million dollars apiece, and 45 universities, colleges and technological schools reported gifts amounting to more than $100,000.

State and municipal appropriations grew from $9,649,549 in 1905 to $23,400,540 in 1914, while fees for tuition and other educational services increased from $15,390,847 to $22,504,529.

PALMER'S CANOE TRIP

SUN REPORTER FINISHED THE VOYAGE IN CANOE WITH JACKSON PALMER

Shortly after Jackson Palmer's arrival at the Pawtucket boat house yesterday afternoon he was met by a Sun representative, and together they strolled down the canal walk which runs along the Northern canal to select a safe landing for the canoe. After picking out a spot where a landing could be made without fear of upsetting the frail craft, "Jack" told of his experiences on the first two days of the trip, and during the conversation he invited The Sun man to accompany him on the remainder of the journey.

The worst dangers of the trip, he said, had been successfully encountered and the only obstacle to be met with on the last leg would be at Hunt's falls. This he said would be gone over without fear of upsetting, and The Sun reporter accepted the invitation.

The husky lawyer then went back to the Pawtucket bridge where he put his craft into the water and paddled down stream before the eyes of several hundred people to the spot selected for the landing. The trip down stream took less than three minutes, and in due time he was carrying the canoe on top of his head to a point near the Little Canada playground, where it was launched in the Merrimack. A crowd of probably 300 had gathered at this point to watch him start out.

After selecting the most comfortable spot in the center of the canoe for his passenger, Jackson shoved off from the shore, while the crowd on the river banks cheered him. The trip down the river to the Alken street bridge was uneventful, and when the "Joe Knowles" of Lowell pushed his canoe under the bridge there were probably 1000 people waiting to get a look at him. A short distance from the bridge, at a point opposite the Lawrence Manufacturing company, white-water was encountered, and the going for the first time was a little rough, but very little water was taken in the canoe. The trip continued down stream, "Jack" paddling along at a steady gait, until the Centralville bridge was sighted. Along the retaining wall which runs along Front street, a small army of photographers were intrenched with their cameras, and when the two men in the canoe passed by, they were "all shot to pieces."

A crowd of probably 3500 had gathered on the Centralville bridge to watch the young lawyer on his trip to the falls, which can be seen from any point of the bridge, and the majority of them waited until the canoe shot around the first bend in the falls. While passing under the bridge he was given a great ovation, and for some time he was kept busy waving the big sombrero, which he wore, in response to the cheers of his admirers.

But very few people were seen along the banks from the bridge to the far end of Stackpole street, but at this point a sight to behold was witnessed. Standing on the long retaining wall which runs along the Stackpole street side of the river was a fellow with a big six shooter in hand which he was using with marked effect, while by his side stood an athletic young fellow waving an American flag. A short distance below a large crowd had gathered to watch the canoe shoot the falls, and when Palmer hove in sight he received another ovation.

From the time the start was made below the Moody street bridge until the men with the flag and gun were sighted, The Sun man had been wearing a heavy blue overcoat, but before the falls were reached, Jackson cautioned him to remove the wrap, as it would probably be much easier swimming without it. This was done and the start was made for the falls. The Sun man wanted Palmer to make the trip through the channel, but he was obdurate and insisted on going through the middle of the falls to give the people on the banks a little excitement in payment for their journey down the river to witness the feat, and there was no shaking him in his intention. The people on the river banks undoubtedly were much pleased with the performance, not so The Sun man. The first thing he knew, the front of the canoe dove down like a submarine, and in a second another wave came and lifted the frail craft high in the air while still a third breaker came and washed over the front of the canoe, nearly drowning the news writer. But the worst was yet to come. About midway in the falls, after going through several durlings, such as has been related, the canoe was caught by a monster wave, and turned completely around, and the boat took several gallons of water as a result of turning on its side. The craft would have capsized only for the skillful manipulation of the paddle by Palmer, and it over the big fellow worked, he worked at this moment. After the falls had been passed over, and the canoe turned in to the shore and the water dumped, Jackson said it was the narrowest escape he had on the whole trip. He was wet up to the thighs, while his passenger might as well have undertaken to swim through the falls, so completely drenched was he.

The remainder of the trip to Stanley's was paddled without mishap, hundreds of campers lining the banks to query Palmer about his trip, and to offer congratulations. The arrival at Stanley's was made at 7.27 p. m., which was very slow time for the last few miles, but this is accounted for by the fact that after Hunt's falls had been passed, Palmer simply contented himself with steering the canoe with his paddle, the stream doing all the work.

On his arrival at the down river resort, he was met by a large gathering of admirers, and after enjoying a much needed rub-down by that prince of artists, Trainer Jimmy Mahan, Palmer delighted in gathering for over an hour with an account of the entire trip.

CLAIM IDEAL ANTISEPTIC
Discovery of Drs. Carrel and Dakin Expected to Be of Immense Value in Surgery

PARIS, Aug. 6.—Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute of medical research and Dr. Henry D. Dakin of the Lister Institute have discovered after exhaustive experiment at the Compiegne military hospital, what they claim to be the ideal antiseptic.

The most powerful antiseptic known to science is hypochlorite of lime, but its use is injurious to the tissues, owing to its acidity, and it does not keep.

Drs. Dakin and Carrel have found these two defects are remedied respectively by the addition of carbonate of lime and boric acid.

Wonderful results have been obtained with the new antiseptic, and if applied in time it is said to make infection in wounds henceforth impossible.

Prof. Landouzy explained the new antiseptic to the Academy of Science, whose members agreed that the discovery will be of great importance in surgery.

GARDNER FOR CUSHING
CONGRESSMAN TO SUPPORT LIEUT. GOV. IN CONTEST FOR REPUBLICAN NOMINATION

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—Congressman Augustus P. Gardner announced in the following characteristic letter that he is supporting Lieut. Governor

Grafton D. Cushing in the contest for Governor:

"I see by the press that a large number of republican officeholders, past, present and hopeful, have publicly declared themselves in favor of Mr. McCall as the republican candidate for governor. At least one republican officeholder, to wit, the writer of this letter, has not yet declared himself in favor of Mr. McCall, for the reason that he considers that your nomination is essential to republican success in Massachusetts this fall.

"You and I, my dear Governor, are well aware of the fact that the younger men of the republican party, and the younger men of the progressive party, firmly believe, whether rightly or wrongly, that for a number of years back the management of our party in the state of Massachusetts has not rested in the hands of persons ready to approach modern problems with open minds. Inasmuch as I am absolutely convinced that the republican party cannot be put on a sound footing in this state, or elsewhere for that matter, until there is new, liberal, open minded blood infused into the veins of its management, I am seeking an opportunity to assist your candidacy.

"It is my intention to offer you a reception at my home in Hamilton, for which I hope very much that you will do me the honor to set the date.

"To that reception I shall invite all citizens of my congressional district, and of the towns of Peabody, Middleton and Boxford, localities which I represented in Washington for ten years.

"At this reception I shall not be able to array a formidable Phalanx of the party big-wigs, but I am in hopes that their absence may be offset by the presence of large numbers of citizens who ordinarily take no part in political meetings."

DYNAMITE ON LINER

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—It became known at police headquarters here today that a stick of dynamite was found aboard the White Star liner Arabic before she sailed from this port for Liverpool on July 28. The explosive, in such a state of deterioration that experts said it would have exploded at the slightest jar, was found by a stewardess between hot and cold water pipes.

It was reported at police headquarters yesterday that a bomb had been found in one of the foreign consulates in New York. Investigation of the report caused the police to tell that the dynamite had been found on the Arabic instead.

10,000 Daily Leaving Baltic Capital—Church Bells Removed

PETROGRAD, Aug. 6, 1 p. m., via London, 2:45 p. m.—Ten thousand persons daily have been leaving Riga, the Baltic capital, the past week.

About the objects most carefully removed from the evacuated territory are church bells. Many of the bells are too large to remove whole without erecting special frame work and in such cases they are sawed in pieces. Such was the fate of the 300-ton bell in the Warsaw Orthodox cathedral.

THROW FLOOD GATES OPEN

LOCKS & CANALS CO. STRIVES TO RELIEVE PRESSURE ON DAM AT PAWTUCKET FALLS

The Locks & Canals Co. is being greatly handicapped in the work of mending the break at the Pawtucket dam. The work, as a matter of fact, is very nearly at a standstill and it was stated today that the company is apprehensive of danger to the coffer dam that is being installed because of the freshet caused by the very unusual amount of rain. If the coffer dam should be swept away it is feared that other portions of the main dam might go with it.

In order to obviate the threatening occurrence the company has thrown the flood gates open in order to relieve the pressure at the dam and it is estimated that 35,000 cubic feet of water a minute is rushing through the flood gates. All but about 20 feet of the break at the dam has been repaired and so high is the water at the present time that it is flowing over the dam from one end to the other.

THE PROGRESSIVE PARTY

LEADERS DISCUSS ITS FUTURE AT ALBANY, N. Y.—G. W. PERKINS TALKS

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Up-state progressives, most of them country chairmen, met here today to discuss the future of the party, particularly as to putting candidates in the field at the fall election. It was expected that between 40 and 50 leaders from various parts of the state would be here before the meeting closed tonight. George W. Perkins of New York was expected to arrive some time during the day.

Henry J. Cochrane, Albany county chairman of the progressives, today announced his intention to return to the republican party.

George W. Perkins told the leaders that the progressive organization is the only one that stands for preparedness for peace as well as preparedness for war. "When the war broke out," because of the Wilson tariff, our business was undergoing depression and thousands of men were being thrown out of work. The large war orders this country received from Europe have enabled us to put these men back to work. When the war stops this business will stop. To avoid this impending catastrophe, Mr. Perkins favored the creation of an expert non-partisan commission that will take the tariff out of politics.

As to next year, Mr. Perkins declined to say if he believed Col. Roosevelt again would be a candidate for governor or if he would support Gov. Hiram Johnson of California for the place.

HIS EXPERIENCES AT SEA

Bertram D. Bent, son of the late William H. Bent, has done with the sea and is devoting his spare time to the study of law, the profession in which his father attained such notable proficiency. It was Mr. Bent's great desire to have Bertram engage in the practice of law, but having been born in Newburyport, the lad was in love with the sea and fairly captivated by stories he had read of life on board ship.

Young Bent made a good sailor, but the splash of the waves no longer lull him to sleep, for he has become a landsman, and there's a reason. Bertram is a married man. His wife is the daughter of James P. Ramsay, probation officer of the superior court. The Bent-Ramsay nuptials took place some seven or eight years ago, all of which is related by way of introduction to Mr. Bent's latest endeavor, that of public speaker, and they do tell that Bertram is some talker.

He delighted the boys at the Concord reformatory recently with the story of his experiences at sea. He spoke of them as being commonplace, but his auditors didn't think so. There was too much fun—and tragedy—in the story to consider it commonplace. "Our Paper" published the following report of Mr. Bent's address:

Mr. Bent's address was chock full of humor and interest, and he kept the audience laughing, and continually guessing what was coming next. To say that he was appreciated would not do him full justice. He was enjoyed every minute.

Mr. Bent said it made no difference what a man's profession was there was usually something in his early life that led up to it. Mr. Bent came from Newburyport, which, at one time, did a large shipbuilding business. The last ship was built there in the year in which he was born.

By the time that Mr. Bent was thirteen years old he had read up thoroughly on the sea and knew every rope, although he had never actually seen a square-rigged vessel. And he wanted to go to sea, not as one of the "white shirt" gang, but "before the mast." He spoke to his father about it, but there was "nothing doing." The father wanted him to stay at home, read, and be a lawyer. In fact, he wanted him to be a lawyer.

But the young Mr. Bent made up his mind he was going to sea. About the time he was graduated from the grammar school, he laid his plans to run away—all on his allowance of $1 a week. So, he saved his money for a month or two and, believing it to be the best way to save a "row" he "skipped."

The ship McLaurin, which was the last ship built in Newburyport—the year he was born, was to sail from New York. So, he went to Boston and bought a sea-kit in a sailors' junk shop on Causeway street. "Junk shop" is a sailor's phrase for a store where one can buy anything needed from clothes to tobacco. Mr. Bent also bought a sea-chest, and began to feel as if he were a real deep-water man at last.

When he got there he did not know how to get to Pearl street, where the ship's office was located. He had about 50 cents, not enough for car-fare, and his chest was too large for him to carry. At last he arranged for a man with a wheelbarrow to carry the chest and a canvas bag, which he also had, and he waited to Pearl street.

He arrived at the office 15 minutes before closing time. He was so small that his head just came above the edge of the counter. But he signed on as boy for the voyage, and went aboard the ship.

In those days it was very hard to get a crew of sober men. Some of them had to be hauled aboard with tackle. And so it was in this case. The crew was mostly drunk, and the captain had to hire a gang of riggers who had been at work on the ship, to take her outside the bay. They were chored at Montauk Point, and there the riggers left.

Just Getting Acquainted

On the following morning the second mate started to get acquainted with his crew. He asked the boy if he could handle a hand-pump. The boy said he could, so he was ordered to rig up the forward pump. A hose was stuck through the port window of the starboard forecastle, and the second mate called to know if all was ready. It was.

"Pump!" he ordered, and the boy pumped. The men came bolting out through the doors like drowned rats, and the first and second mates, standing, one at each door with a belaying-pin, cracked each one over the head as he came out, to bring him more thoroughly to his senses. They were fairly sober in short order.

After this rude process of sobering off, the men got sail on; the chafing gear was rigged, the litter 'tween decks was stowed, everything was squared up and the ship went on its way to Rio de Janeiro.

The first event of any importance to take place, was "crossing the line." No man is really considered a sailor until he crossed the line—that is, the equator—and has been shaved by Neptune.

Mr. Bent had read of the ceremonies of crossing the line, and had figured out about when the equator was due. On the day he had forecast as the day of crossing, his watch was the early watch. He thought that "something was up," so instead of going to his bunk when his watch was finished, he went aloft into the main-top.

Around the edge of this platform are a series of holes through which parts of the rigging are roved. These are called "roving holes," and by lying flat he could look through one of them and see all that was going on below.

Everybody was on deck, even the "Old Man," as the captain is always called. But the second mate and two of the sailors were not to be seen. There was a fine breeze and the ship was sailing at a good rate, when suddenly, over the bow came the hall.

"Ship ahoy!"

"Hullo?" answered the captain. "What ship is that?" again called the voice.

"The ship McLaurin, bound for Rio!" replied the captain. "Have you anybody aboard who has not crossed the line, or been shaved by Neptune?"

"I believe we have," said the captain.

"Very well. We are coming aboard," and in a moment old Neptune himself, clad in a bathing suit, with a long beard made of rope-yarn, and with his trident in his hand, clambered aboard, accompanied by two policemen. Those policemen were screams.

By Was Discovered

There was a sort of throne placed on the quarter deck and the man who had not been shaved ascended this throne and was shaved. After Neptune had finished he said:

"Where's the boy?"

"In his bunk," someone said. But sure enough the boy could not be found. Finally after they had searched everywhere, Neptune and his two aides went over the bow again. Mr. Bent thought himself safe, so he descended from his perch, but the moment he landed on deck the two "policemen" were back again, and had him in their clutches.

Under Neptune's commands he was taken to the throne, in which he was placed. Then Neptune asked him his name, where he came from, and numerous other questions. Immediately back of the throne was a tub of water. It was dirty water. They also had a brush, and a pan of stuff called soap, but it wasn't. The razor was a part of a barrel-hoop, it was sharp in places, dull in places, and full of rust and nicks.

After the preliminary questions, the boy was asked if he had any gold filling in his mouth. He answered that he had two.

"Let's see them!" said Neptune. Unsuspecting, he opened his mouth, and got it full of "soap" from the brush, and then he was shaved with the barrel-hoop. It was rather a painful operation, and just as he thought it was through he was pushed into the tub of dirty water. He was now a full fledged sailor.

After a pretty decent trip the ship arrived at Rio where it discharged its cargo and took a stone ballast, sailing from Rio to Singapore, by way of the Cape of Good Hope.

Mr. Bent had many amusing incidents on this cruise, and, finally, when he got back to New York, it was time to leave the ship he cried like a baby. For though the life of a boy aboard ship is hard, he had grown to love his ship very much.

The speaker told of some of the schemes resorted to in the past in order to get men to work ship. Some of them were rather ludicrous, but some were the height of injustice.

Aboard the Enterprise

After some time spent ashore, Mr. Bent felt the longing for the sea again, and, finally, he shipped aboard the Enterprise. On board this ship, managed by the commonwealth, boys were taught navigation, seamanship, in fact, were taught to be officers aboard a merchant ship.

He told of the initiation each boy must go through on first going aboard. The experiences were very amusing in the telling. Mr. Bent's narrative of the times spent in foreign ports were highly interesting, taking in Havre, in France, Gibraltar, and Panchal, Madeira. He spoke of the slide that is taken down a mountain in Panchal, on a peculiar kind of sled, which was infinitely more exciting than the same sled would be on snow.

On the way back home they stopped at Bermuda, where one of the boys fell overboard. When he fell he had a broom, and when he was picked up afterward he still had the broom, though he had been in the water over two hours.

It is Mr. Bent's opinion, and that of many more, that at the termination of the present war in Europe, there is going to be a tremendous boom in the American merchant service. Any young man who goes to sea and learns to

The Quarter Back says "There Must Be No Interference With Immediate Clearance"

Former prices, profit expectations, real worth of merchandise must all be forgotten in the determination to clear this stock of all summer goods at the earliest possible moment. We must make way for Fall. That is what "The Quarter Back" is looking forward to, because in the Fall "The Quarter Back" is in his glory and he is anxious to disburse these Summer Goods. That is why he is playing havoc with this stock now. Making inroads to it through the most terrific campaign of price-cutting on high quality merchandise that this town has ever seen. He is smashing the line right and left. He is downing prices and pounding holes through for you to come in and make your gains. And this town is feeling the impact too. Such rushing for the bargains, such response to the offerings and such enthusiastic acceptance of the advantages indicates on all sides that men know unequalled opportunities when they see them.

PENROSE'S TARIFF BILL

SENATOR WILL INTRODUCE MEASURE TO PROTECT US FROM COLLAPSE AFTER WAR

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6.—United States Senator Boies Penrose in a speech at a dinner here last night announced that he would introduce a tariff bill at the next session of congress. The senator said the bill would be "protective in its nature containing a horizontal reduction of 15 or 20 per cent on many of the duties contained in the Payne bill, but reinforcing some of the schedules, like the chemical schedule, to the extent that may be necessary to secure these industries in our country."

"This bill will protect us from the collapse which will occur on the close of the war in Europe and will furnish us money to prepare for the national defense, should any nation of Europe in arms desire to invade or assault us."

CLOSE FLOATING HOTEL

THE STAMLER, HOME FOR GIRLS, WILL BE CLOSED ON AUGUST TWENTY-EIGHT

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Warning that the oldest hotel in New York will be closed on August 28 when more than fifty working girls are to be sent ashore from the ship Jacob A. Stamler, today caused much unhappiness among the occupants of the floating hotel. A notice posted on the bulletin board on the Stamler's deck read that Arbuckle's deep sea hotel company had decided to retire from the hotel business and will serve no meals after August 28.

For years the Stamler has been a home for girls employed in shops and stores, at a cost to them varying from $2.50 to $3.50 a week. Many of them earned only $1 a week and 14 of the girls are now unemployed.

The city fire department had ordered changes to be made in the Stamler, and it was said that the company did not wish to go to the expense of making them. The old ship, built in 1887, was purchased by John Arbuckle in 1901 and for several years has been moored at a pier in the East river as a home for girls.

MAINE APPLE CROP FAILS

Harvest Usually Worth $1,500,000 Will Be About $250,000 According to State Horticulturist

AUGUSTA, Me., Aug. 6.—It is believed here that there will be a loss of over $1,500,000 in Maine on the hay crop alone by reason of the wet weather.

Orchardists in central Maine say that much of the apple crop will be a failure. Beyond a few barrels of poor fruit from the best trees, for making cider, some of the orchardists will not harvest. State Horticulturist Gardner says that the Maine apple crop under normal conditions is worth $1,500,000, whereas the 1915 crop will probably not exceed $250,000.

A QUARTER CENTURY AGO

"Donovan batting for Quinn!" cried the umpire in the eighth inning of the game between the Lowell and Boston police teams at Spaulding park, Tuesday, and the grand old man of baseball in Lowell stepped to the plate. He got first on the error of the first baseman went to third on Brewett's two-bagger and scored. Lowell's fifth and last run on a passed ball. The Lawrence papers have been waxing enthusiastic over Charlie Wadlin, who at 34 years of age is pitching for the Lawrence police, while other papers throughout the country are lauding Heinie Wagner, who at 41 years is still with the big show. But Police Officer Jack Donovan at 52 years of age is still playing ball after being in the game 33 years continuously—some record.

One would never guess that Jack Donovan was 52 years of age though the fact that his son Eugene is a college athlete and a player on the structure for the city of Lowell would indicate that he is no chicken. But with a baseball uniform on and running after a fly in right field Jack would impress the spectators that he was in the 30's instead of in the half-century class.

Way back in 1883 when there was no New England league team in Lowell Joe Callahan, baseball and horse-racing expert, organized a team from the North common, which he called the Lowell team, and arraying them in uniforms, a luxury in those days for the North common players, sent them all over the state playing semi-professional ball. Among the players on that team were Jack Donovan, Charlie Hartwell, Eddie Cull, Jack Guthrie, Connie O'Leary, Henry Nagure, and others. Out of the entire team Charlie Hartwell was the only one who shaved. Charlie possessed a budding mustache of which he was very proud, but none of the others could show anything more than the cat-hair of extreme youth. For the next couple of years Jack Donovan played around the commons and in 1886 became the crack catcher of the famous Hood team with "Rogers" Connors, the former "Pride of the Acre" as his pitcher. The old Hood team was known all over New England and on the reputation they received with the Hood's, Rogers and Jack got an engagement with the Big Rapids, Mich. team of the Northern Michigan league in 1887 and both went there in the spring of that year. They made a big hit in this league and on their recommendation Eddie Cull and Connie O'Leary got jobs with Big Rapids and the four Lowell men played on the same team. In the Michigan league Connors and Donovan were known as the "Irish battery" and they were exceedingly popular. Big Rapids went bad and as other teams were clamoring for their services Rogers and Jack asked for their release and it was given to them on condition that they could not sign with any team in the northern Michigan league. They started playing independent ball and when the Evans, Indiana, team withdrew from the league they signed with Evans and continued with them until the close of the year.

Organized Indiana League

The following year Connors went farther west where he afterward became known as the "Wallie Wallie Wonder" while Jack Donovan went to Elkhart, Ind. where he made his home for over 10 years afterward, becoming one of Elkhart's best known citizens. Jack not only caught for Elkhart, alternating with Lou Criger, who afterward became the famous Boston catcher, but became captain and manager of the team and he it was who organized the Indiana State league which ever since has held a prominent place in organized baseball. At the close of the first season Jack was not allowed to depart but was given a job as a fireman on a train running between Elkhart and Chicago, a job that he held for several years, playing ball in the summer and working on the railroad in the winter. Leaving the railroad job he became a member of the permanent fire department of Elkhart, and was permitted to play semi-professional ball during the summer, playing two games a week. In the winter he promoted athletic indoor events and aroused in Elkhart a lively interest in boxing and brought many famous boxers to that city, officiating himself as match-maker and referee. Jack met his fate and married in Elkhart, while two of his children were born there. In the early 90's his arm went bad temporarily and he abandoned the catcher's job going to the outfield. He returned to Lowell in 1895 with his family and has made his home here ever since. When he got back the old Urban and Suburban league was running and Jack's services were demanded, but he saw more money in umpiring, and with Frank Kenney, did the umpiring during the strenuous days of that little league. An umpire's job was no sinecure in that time; just ask Frank Kenney about that Emerald-Union 7 to 7 game on the Fair Grounds, when he called the game at the close of the ninth inning to prevent a rough-house. Shortly after his return to Lowell Jack became a conductor on the street railroad and a member of the local street railroad ball team. Upon becoming a member of the police force he started the police baseball team and has played with the department team ever since, never missing a game. This year he has played in each game, going in as a pinch-hitter or relieving some one of the outfielders, and he is also president of the Massachusetts Police Baseball league, having been one of the organizers of that league. Jack comes of a family of ball players, his brothers Connie and Eugene having been co-catchers with the famous old Emerald team of the North common. Connie playing the infield and managed the team and Eugene, behind the bat and on second base. His son Eugene, the present Holy Cross college football full-back and playground instructor, is also a baseball player along with being the first man to score a touchdown against Harvard last fall, when Harvard played the Holy Cross team. Jack's first game in Big Rapids was a memorable one. In the early part of the game he received a foul tip that broke the small mark that the catchers wore in those days, inflicting a cut over the eye that required five stitches. Jack refused to leave the field and the game was held up while a surgeon did the job in full view of the audience after which Jack resumed playing. I recall the description of the game in the Big Rapids paper which Jack sent home, one line of which read: "In the seventh, Donovan, the new catcher, came to the bat with blood in his eye and more on his shirt"—and he was there for a three-bagger on that particular occasion.

When Mahoney Played Here

Appropos of the reference to the police ball players and the days of the old Urban and Suburban league, it might be well to correct a slight mistake that appeared in the morning paper relative to the appearance of George Mahoney, the Boston police catcher and former Georgetown athlete in Lowell, prior to last week. Mahoney appeared here to play with the M. C. L. team against the Emeralds in a game at the Fair grounds, in 1894 or thereabouts when the Urban and Suburban league was going good and there was great rivalry and excitement over the games. In that old league the Emeralds representing the North common, and the Unions representing North Chelmsford, played the same lineup throughout the season, while the other teams when a big game was on went out of town and engaged star batteries, bringing some first class "ringers" to Lowell. On this occasion while the game was scheduled as between the Y. M. C. L's and Emeralds, the former team was really a combination of the Unions and Y. M. C. L. for Tip O'Neil, Pat Nestor, "Jerky" Hoyle, and Joe Quigley, of the Unions were in the line-up. Manager Dolan of the Y. M. C. L's went to Boston and secured the services of George Mahoney and one Smith, who had been released from Philadelphia Nationals or who afterward joined them, I don't recall which. Mahoney had left Georgetown and had tried out with Boston Nationals and was some pitcher. The pair came to Lowell for the munificent sum of $15 and when the word was passed around the North Chelmsford and Belvidere followers of the game went to the banks and drew out their money, expecting to make a clean-up. The hacker of the Emeralds was the late "Johnnie" Bourke, who bet on the North common team against all comers. The hackers of the Belvidere team went looking for "Johnnie" and he had a big roll with him. But it happened that Mike Mahoney, the umpire was on the field as a spectator and he quickly recognized both Mahoney and Smith and, going to Bourke, advised him not to bet. Johnnie took his advice and kept his money in his pocket and kicked himself afterward for while Mike's advice was well meant, the Emeralds won the game for Tip O'Neil made two errors that let in two runs and Pat Nestor made another that brought home the third and the final score was 3 to 2 in favor of the Emeralds. "Smiling" Mike Kane, manager of the South Ends was the umpire and he had a strenuous time. Mahoney pitched what was called a "snake ball." It looked awful bad as it came along, but always broke nicely and came over the plate. Every time that George would hand over that snake ball, Mike who was behind the bat thinking that it was coming for his head would duck and yell: "Ball!" not waiting to see it break. Each time it would go over, a perfect strike, and the bunch in the grand stand would bawl out the ump's ducking. Billy Connors and the late Danville Murphree were the battery for the Emeralds and the funny thing about it was that while Billy Connors was generally a weak batter he was the only Emerald on this occasion who could do anything with the delivery of the mighty Mahoney, making four singles in four times up. That was Mahoney's only appearance in Lowell until last Tuesday when he appeared behind the bat for the Boston cops, bigger and jollier than ever.

Ho, for the Beach!

God always loved the Irish and hence the Lowell Irish Benevolent had no such weather as we are getting these days when they held their annual picnic at Lynn beach quarter of a century ago. The old Sun reported the event which occurred 25 years ago today, as follows:

"The annual picnic of the Lowell Irish Benevolent society perhaps was the most successful affair ever held by the society. As usual a band made a tour of the city in the early morning, led by Mr. John Donahue, with an Irish pike which some of his ancestors used at the battle of the Boyne, in an attempt to rout the forces of William, Prince of Orange. The strains of the band awoke many from their slumbers who then for the first time became aware that the day for the 'annual wash' had arrived; and many there were who then threw up their other engagements and bled themselves to the beach determined to have a bath in the briny ocean once a year 'whether they needed it

WOMAN IN BAD CONDITION

Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Montpelier, Vt.—"We have great faith in your remedies. I was very irregular and was tired and sleepy all the time, would have cold chills, and my hands and feet would blot. My stomach bothered me, I had pain in my side and a bad headache most of the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me lots of good and I now feel fine. I am regular, my stomach is better and my pains have all left me. You can use my name if you like. I am proud of what your remedies have done for me."—MRS. MARY GAUTHIER, 21 Ridge St., Montpelier, Vt.

An Honest Dependable Medicine

It must be admitted by every fair-minded, intelligent person, that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for nearly forty years, and to-day hold a record for thousands upon thousands of actual cures, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, without possessing great virtue and actual worth. Such medicines must be looked upon and termed both standard and dependable by every thinking person.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to any of the women whose testimonial letters we are constantly publishing. They will tell you their experience and give you confidence to try the medicine.

or not." All flocked to the Boston & Maine station whence two trains of 22 well loaded cars left for Lynn at 7.30 o'clock. Another special train left at 11.30 o'clock while many went down by the regular trains. It was estimated that over 2000 people attended the picnic and the day passed off most pleasantly, no accidents happening to mar the festivities. The Union orchestra furnished music for dancing. John Doherty was general manager, and Daniel Shea was floor director. He was assisted by the following aids: Fergus McSkerry, Morgan Riley, Michael Boyle, John Donahue, Hugh C. McSkerry, John E. McGuire, Charles H. Callahan, Anthony McCarron and John Whitty.

The late John Doherty, the prime mover of all Benevolent picnics, was as well known in Lynn as he was in Lowell and could have anything he wanted in that city for he made one big day annually for Lynn—the Lowell picnic day, or as it was also dubbed—Lowell's Annual Wash day. For years the picnics were held at Lynn beach and they became so famous that people for miles around the city of Lynn, many of whom had never seen Lowell never missed the big picnic and 10,000 strangers would assemble in Lynn on picnic day. Some of the Lynn factories declared a half-holiday when the Lowell Irish came to town. The Benevolents would start to advertise their annual picnic by white down cards about the time that the snow disappeared in the spring so that everybody would get "fair warning." Then when the eve of the picnic arrived it wasn't a case of singing: "You must wake and call me early; call me early, mother dear." John Doherty, himself attended that little matter, and ere the sun had come over the eastern horizon, and it never failed to come, on picnic day, John Doherty and his band and his faithful followers would be pounding the blowways and the byways of the Acre and the Flats, awakening everybody, in time for the first train. And talk about a fine time in Lynn! But those are gone—gone, "Gone, alas, like our youth, too soon."

ARMED MEN ON GUARD

OVER $1,000,000 TRANSFERRED TO TEMPORARY QUARTERS IN ORDINARY MOVING VAN

LAWRENCE, Aug. 6.—An unusual spectacle was furnished the people who happened to be in the vicinity of the corner of Lawrence and Essex street early yesterday morning when a heavily guarded furniture wagon was seen to leave the Bay State building and drive up to the old banking rooms of the Merchants' Trust company building at 233 Essex street. Perhaps very few of those who noticed this commonplace moving van with men walking beside it and men sitting on queer looking bundles wrapped in white paper within the team realized that at that moment $1,000,000 worth of cash was being transferred from the bank's vault in its Bay State offices to the vault in the Merchants' Trust company's old banking rooms. The present Bay State bank quarters are to be remodelled. The bank officials acted as guards for the moving van while policemen were stationed at the entrances of the two banks to insure the absolute safety of the transfer.

SUMMER FOODS AS CAUSE OF DYSPEPSIA

Effect on Digestive Organs Responsible For Many Ills

Summer should be the season of most perfect health but impure water and milk, unripe fruit and a tendency to over-indulge in acid foods and cold drinks results in a contrary condition in many people. The effect of the average summer diet is to constipate, even normally regular bowels, and disturb the digestion. This condition can best be corrected by the use of a mild laxative that has combined with it the elements of a digestive tonic. The combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin—that is sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin—is gentle, yet positive in its action and brings relief in an easy, natural manner, without griping or other discomfort. A dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin on retiring each night will regulate the digestive organs and insure healthy activity, irrespective of one's diet. A bottle of this splendid remedy should be in every household. It is not expensive and can be purchased for only fifty cents in drug stores everywhere. (A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.)

INCREASE FOR WOMEN PLAN BIG PARADE

Clerks to be Paid $8.50—Retail Store Board Reports—Minimum of $5 for All Under 17

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—Substantial increase in the wages of minors and female employees of retail stores has been established by the retail store wage board which has just made a report of its study of the conditions in this state to the minimum wage commission.

Perhaps the most noticeable increase is that made for boys and girls under 17, who hereafter will have to be paid at least $5 a week. The new schedule of wages will take effect at New Year's, and is as follows: The minimum wage to be paid to any female employee who after reaching the age of 18 has had one year's experience in a retail store shall be $3.50 a week. The wage for inexperienced female workers who are 18 or older shall be not less than $7 a week. Minors between 17 and 18 shall be paid not less than $5 a week. The wage for minors under 17 shall be not less than $5 a week.

The finding of the retail store wage board is along the same lines as that of the board which inquired into the wages paid laundry workers. Under authority of the legislature the minimum wage commission appointed a committee to inquire into the matter of wages paid in retail stores and this commission after many hearings has issued its report.

The following committee was appointed for the purpose of looking into the matter of conducting a minstrel show at Keith's theatre: Leo Albertson, Julius Neyman, Harry Goldman, Sigmund Rostler and Max Goldman.

The convention club committee has mailed communications to Hebrew residents of this city who own automobiles, asking them to co-operate with the Y. M. H. A. delegates by going to Worcester, Sept. 4, 5 and 6.

AMSTERDAM, via London, Aug. 5, 3.55 a. m.—"A lasting Russian offensive is no longer to be expected in the near future," says Major Morhaut, military critic of the Berlin Tageblatt in a review of the situation in Poland. "Henceforth, as soon as our attack begins the Russian defense must crumble because it is no longer adequately supported by rifles and machine guns. We doubt the possibility of reorganizing the Russian army during the present war."

The Business Session

Following a report by each of the parade committees recently appointed, a gist of routine business was transacted, and the council went on record as endorsing the one-day-in-five bill for members of the fire department.

The Barbers' union reported a grievance in one of the local shops, and the matter was placed in the hands of the grievance committee. A communication from the Massachusetts state branch of the American Federation of Labor was read, in which attention was called to the vote of senators and representatives on bills referring to labor matters. The legislative committee was instructed to inspect the roll and report back to the council how the votes had been cast.

A communication from the Metal Polishers referred to a strike in Chicago, and a second communication called attention to a strike of horse-shoe nail makers in Connecticut. An appropriation of $10 was voted for the latter strikers. A number of other communications also were read, and these were referred to the proper committees for disposal. The grievance committee submitted its report which was passed upon as progressive, and the labor forward committee turned in a lengthy report, which showed the work accomplished since the last meeting. The Blacksmiths' union, which recently became affiliated with the council, sent its first delegation to the session last night, and the new members did active work.

ESTATE OF $30,000,000

HUSBAND OF RICHEST GIRL IN THE WORLD CANNOT COLLECT CENT OF INCOME

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Although Catherine Barker, who recently was wedded to Howard Spaulding, Jr., was possessed of an estate said to approximate $30,000,000, her husband cannot collect one cent of the income, it became known today when a trust deed of the estate of the late John H. Barker, car manufacturer, was found in the office of the probate of Cook county. The deed provides that the heirs shall receive $5000 a year until she is 21 years of age. Then she is to receive $150,000 a year until she is 25 years old. After that time she is to receive the entire income of the trust fund, except what is necessary to pay other annuities.

It also provides that payments to Mrs. Spaulding "are to be made directly to her by check or draft payable to her order, and shall not be made to any other person, or upon any written or verbal order given by her, or upon any transfer or assignment made by her or created by operation of law."

Mrs. Spaulding is given the power to dispose of the estate by will.

rooms hastily when the Summit house, a summer hotel here, was discovered ablaze early today. The four-story wooden building was destroyed, causing a loss estimated at $12,000.

The fire started around an open fireplace. A night watchman who discovered it notified other members of the hotel staff and the guests were quickly aroused. Before all of them could get out the stairways were in flames and many were obliged to climb down the fire escapes or were assisted down ladders by volunteer firemen. Emmett Nawn, son of the owner, E. L. Nawn, was burned about the arms while assisting in the work of rescue.

OUR MERCHANT MARINE

The democratic administration has not abandoned its cherished plan to establish a government-owned merchant marine, according to recent pronouncements of Secretary McAdoo who is generally supposed to reflect the wishes of President Wilson in the matter. In a letter to the Greenboro, N. C., chamber of commerce, Aug. 4, Mr. McAdoo came out far more strongly for the American merchant marine than at any time during the agitation in congress that culminated in the defeat of the measure. The administration plans are especially significant at this time, in connection with the protests of American business at present conditions and the lack of adequate facilities to offset our absolute dependence on foreign shipping lines.

Secretary McAdoo is very emphatic in his declaration that we need a government-owned merchant marine not only for the transportation of our commerce but to constitute a naval auxiliary. He says: "We cannot be longer dependent on foreign flags. It is not safe to do so. We need American ships not only for the expansion of our commerce, but we imperatively require them as auxiliaries for our navy. A modern navy without adequate and suitable naval auxiliaries is rendered helpless for offensive operations at any considerable distance from its home base. We should be justified today in spending fifty to sixty million dollars for the creation of an adequate fleet of naval auxiliaries."

The truth of this is far more apparent now than when the American merchant marine was being more generally discussed. Since then, the war has widened in its scope, and we have seen the folly of being at the mercy of any foreign power, in a commercial sense. We have many commercial grievances with most of the belligerents and still we are compelled to go to these belligerents and our trade rivals for the service that American private capital has refused to give.

Secretary McAdoo is not impressed with the idea that the merchant marine could be automatically started by the granting of subsidies or the changing of our navigation laws. "We cannot afford," he says, "to enter upon the scandalous policy of subsidizing private corporations or individuals." He declares that a government owned merchant marine is absolutely necessary for the extension of trade and that we shall never "be able to carry our commerce to the ends of the earth under any foreign flag."

IN MEXICO

Now that the representatives of all the republics of Central and South America are in conference at Washington to cooperate for the restoring of peace in Mexico, it is interesting to review briefly the situation with which they are confronted. This can best be done by a condensed summary of the three or four most powerful cliques and their aspirations. These factions will naturally clamor for the recognition of their respective claims, and the decision of the mediators cannot be intelligently arrived at without considering each and all.

For the present, the constitutionalists or Carranzistas seem to be the most powerful group in Mexico. They claim to possess military control, and though in Mexico the reins of power pass quickly from one leader to the other, the followers of Carranza seem to have caught on their side. This faction will therefore claim recognition as the logical governing body, but the protests from other groups will be vigorous.

The Villistas and Zapadistas, comprised of the followers of general of the name claim on the other hand to be in control of most of the country; these pretend to be zealous for the restoration of constitutional government. Since President Wilson has declared himself in favor of "constitutional government and the rights of the people" they claim that they are the logical masters of Mexico.

The Cientificos or reactionaries who are openly opposed by President Wilson adhere to the principles of the old regime. Of such is Huerta and others who have been driven out by the revolutionists. These now pretend to favor intervention in order that the methods of Diaz may be restored.

It is said that many of the mediators will be in favor of this last group or the Mals they preach for the time being. In fact, it is mentioned as a possibility that the South American representatives may favor the recognition of Huerta as the man best fitted to end the revolution and restore order. This may be an extreme contingency, but it is interesting to forecast its effect on President Wilson. It is more probable that as the mediators will go more deeply into Mexican affairs than to settle personal and factional troubles, the solution to be suggested may be as yet unthought of.

WAR AND IMMIGRATION

Statistics just published by the bureau of immigration go to prove that the war has practically prevented any increase through immigration in the population of this country for the past year. The average of recent years was cut down more than 95 per cent, and for the comparatively few immigrants who sought our shores, there was an equal exodus. These figures show there is a sound reason for the labor shortage in those centres and industries generally supplied through immigration. During the twelve months ending July 1, immigration was at its lowest since 1899.

The effect of the war on the racial balance in this country is also of special interest. Italian immigrants dropped from 296,414 to 57,217; Hebrews from 138,051 to 26,497; Germans from 79,871 to 20,729; Russians from 44,357 to 4,453 with corresponding decreases from all other nationalities. In 1914, the number of admissions over departures was 677,376, this being the resultant increase in the population of the country from this source. In 1915 the corresponding number was 32,940. Thus the war has very effectively accomplished what the anti-immigration agitators have failed to accomplish through congressional action.

What the aftermath of the war will be in this connection is as yet problematical. History has proved that after each war of any consequence in the old world, there is a great rush of immigration to this country, but there are elements in the present war that make an accurate forecast difficult. It may be that immigration will be more than in normal times, and if American business increases to the degree expected, such immigration may be necessary to supply our labor market. On the other hand, there are those who allege that the ending of the war will be followed by such a rush of immigrants from Europe that American labor and social conditions will be endangered to some extent. The problem that confronts this country is the problem of distribution, and this the government is striving to meet satisfactorily.

APPLY THE LESSONS

The unusual weather conditions of the past few months have resulted in many washouts, floods and serious property damage in all parts of the country, that of Erie, Pa., being the most disastrous. There, the waters of Mill creek, swelled by the incessant rains and by a cloudburst, burst the Glenwood dam, poured in a resistless torrent along the low lying sections of the city and swept factory and home before it over a considerable area. The death list, may not be yet complete, but sufficient is known to brand the Erie tragedy as one of the worst of its kind in recent years. Besides the heavy loss of life, the private property loss will swell into the millions, and the city has suffered grievously in the destruction of culverts, bridges, etc.

Though the people of Erie have lived for many years in fancied security, it transpires that warnings had been issued some years ago against the danger that has now materialized. Many felt that sooner or later, Mill creek would overflow with fatal results. In 1893 the river had overflowed its banks with some loss of life and since then there have been occasional intimations of disaster. This may all be cleared up in the investigations that have been already set on foot, though investigations rarely do more than satisfy the curiosity of the public.

We of Lowell should feel deeply grateful for the absence of floods. Though situated in a valley and on the banks of a river that has sudden expansions and reductions in volume, we have been blessed by the absence of serious disasters such as that of Erie. It must not be forgotten, however, that occasional warnings have been issued, a disregard of which may at some future time be a source of sorrow. When we read of things such as the Erie flood, we may be more ready to heed the warnings of experts who call attention to dangers or lack of precautions in certain municipal plans. Preliminary caution is far better than an investigation that comes too late to do much good.

FOR BOSTON TERMINAL

At a hearing held recently in Boston before the committee appointed by the last legislature to investigate Boston transportation, with an eye to the rehabilitation of the terminal at South Boston, many important suggestions were made and a definite movement was set in motion. The hearing was attended by shipyard and railroad men from all over New England, as the subject is of vital interest to the business of this section. After Boston, it is believed that any New England city has a more direct interest in the question than Lowell which is so dependent on transportation for its industrial future. Those who heard the address of John N.

Cole, chairman of the Boston industrial board, before the local board of trade a year ago will readily understand how the matter concerns this city.

Many of the speakers before the legislative committee were in favor of a new terminal on the site of the present Boston and Albany storage yard, connected with the north and south stations by tunnels and with a belt line circling the city for the transportation of freight. It was said that the improvement would call for an expenditure of forty million dollars—a slight outlay as compared with the Grand Central and Penn. terminals in New York, each of which cost in the vicinity of $100,000,000. The proposition is linked with that of the development of the port of Boston, and would mean a great boost to the prosperity of New England. Whatever plan may be ultimately chosen, there is no denying that the freight transportation of Boston is antiquated, and that present conditions are a drawback to all New England.

"I REMEMBER"

Is there any introduction to a monologue that compels more immediate attention than "I remember?" Except when used by the insufferable bore, it arrests the interest of all who hear and acts as a golden key to the door that leads into the magic vistas of the past. When used by the young, it has a quaint and unique charm; when used by the old, it has a certain authority that silences comment and makes all listen in silence. William Rose Benet, a young American poet recently wrote some verses under the title: "I Remember My Mother." The verses are sentimental, but the sentiment is of the kind for which nobody who likes the verses need make an apology. Here are two of the verses that might have been written by all good people, were they as gifted as Mr. Benet:

I remember my mother
In the deep still night-time.
When books were put on the shelves
And toys were put away.
When the moonlight filled my bedroom
And the shadow-time, the flight-time
Of happy, sleepy memories
Remade the merry day.

The book that always slipped from bed
Was emptied upon and taken.
The clothes that lay both far and near
Were folded on the chair.
And, last, she kissed me lightly,
So lightly—not to waken.
And her white arms were about me,
And her soft dark hair.

The colored waiter busily brushed off the crumbs and said: "Why, how is you, Mr. Jones, how is you?" Is glad to see you, I haven't seen you since I waited on your table when you all used to have a little game upstairs."
"I'm afraid you are mistaken," said Smith very quickly. "My name isn't Jones. You have the wrong man."

FROM "THE ROCK POOL"

Bright as a fallen fragment of the sky,
Mid shell-encrusted rocks the sea-
pool shone,
Glimmering sunset-clouds in its clear heart,
A small enchanted world enwalled apart.
In diamond mystery,
Content with its own dreams, its own strict zone
Of urethra woods, its fairy blights and bars,
Its daisy-disked anemones and rose-feathered stars.
Forgotten for a while by the deep roar
Which
Drags down the cliffs, bids the great hills go by
And shepherds their multitudinous herds,
Here, on this ebb-tide shore,
A jeweled bath of beauty, sparkling still,
The little sea-pool smiled away the sea.
And slept on its own plane of bright tranquility.

A woman's idea of an ideal husband is a husband who is afraid of her. An old battered empty tomato can isn't worth much. But it is of more value than the kiss one woman gives another when they meet on the street. It often happens that the same girl who leads all her classes in the gym is so delicate when she is at home that washing dishes would give her nervous prostration.

Some men seem to have been put on earth so that other men could obtain a good living without working.

After all, discretion is merely having sense enough to pick out some guy you know you can lick when you start anything.

It is all right to knock the living and praise the dead, but if you boast the living and knock the dead you are no gentleman.

Radism is not the scariest thing in the world. The scariest thing in the world is an employee who does not believe that he knows more than the boss.

Why is it that the man who hates kissing so much that he hasn't kissed his own wife for six months will tell a change on getting shot trying to kiss some other man's wife?

Mother is always afraid that the children will be kidnapped. But father knows better.

EFFICIENCY IN NURSING

Address by Dr. William M. Jones
at Recent Meeting of St. John's
Hospital Nurses

At a recent meeting of the graduate nurses of St. John's hospital, an address on the advance in the nursing profession, with special reference to the history of St. John's hospital school for nurses, was made by William Jones of this city. Following is a brief extract:

In speaking of the alumnae of this school it may not be wholly inappropriate to refer briefly to its early days, and I can do so with some degree of knowledge for I was the house officer here at that time. Twenty-one years ago last November the school was opened with Sister Beatrice as the sister superior and Miss Ellis, a graduate of the Massachusetts General Hospital training school, as superintendent of nurses. The facilities for work at that time were by no means what they are today for the hospital was in a transition stage from the old order of things, the methods of pre-antiseptic days, to the then modern ideas of strict antisepsis. We were handicapped for want of equipment which at that time, even at its best, was extremely crude compared with what we have today. We did have, however, in Sister Beatrice an experienced, able and progressive administrator, determined to make St. John's hospital the very best it could be made and demanding in return that the results should justify her efforts and expenditure. No detail ever escaped my dear old superior. Her eyes and her hands were in everything, operating room, sick ward, out-patient wash room, building plans, superintending workmen, house officer, ward tenders, nurses, maids, patients and friends of patients. This was only a part of her work for on her devolved also the financial management and administration of the institution. Her capacity for work was marvelous, and she was as level headed as she was energetic. Stricter to a degree she demanded that everything should move in a straight line, and when we saw her poke up the front peak of her corset with her forefinger we knew there was a good time to attend strictly to business. She was, nevertheless, absolutely just, and no one who did what was fair with her ever received anything but commendation, and grateful recognition. I shall ever remember her as one of the ablest and finest women I ever knew.

The young women of that first class were of superior qualifications and brought rather the zeal of determination than of sentiment into their work. Some of these girls are living, some are dead; some have had life made easy for them, and some have passed through the fires of adversity; but there are none, so far as I know, of whom this school may not be proud. This will be a good school indeed if the same can be said of every class twenty years after it has passed from the training into the real struggle of life.

The same principles that govern efficiency in other things will apply to efficiency in nursing except so far as they must be modified to apply to the peculiar field of operation. Sound health is the first requisite, for without this a nurse could hardly expect to pass successfully through a thorough training, to say nothing of meeting the demands of private nursing should she adopt this as her subsequent line of work. Moreover, the maintenance of her vigor is a serious matter all the way along for the long stretches when it is impossible for her to obtain sleep at all, or at best for irregular and inadequate periods; unable often to observe a diet she would like, or one compensatory to the demands made upon her vital resources; as well as the often very great physical and mental stress to which she is subjected, all these considerations make endurance a prime necessity, and the factors by which it is sustained, matters for serious thought and care. Ten years would probably be a long average for the active work of nurses, taking them as a whole. Sound physical health, then, with its maintenance is the first requisite for efficiency.

The mental equipment may vary within considerable limits for a high natural ability and adaptability may compensate in some degree for a moderate handicap in the matter of general education. Other things being equal, however, the well educated nurse will have some advantage over her less fortunate sister. Plain, ordinary common sense, and lots of it, is the best mental equipment I know. It will teach her to be neat and orderly and quiet in all her habits, to be tactful and discreet in her associations and communications, to be pleasant without being frivolous or garrulous, to be loyal to her patient, to her doctor, and to herself, and how to meet every situation or emergency to the best advantage. Alertness of mind is, of course, to a large extent a natural gift, but it may well be cultivated, for the ability to comprehend and to act quickly is likely to add not a little to her success. So many are the qualities of mind and traits of character which may enter into the making of a nurse that it is practically impossible to discuss, or even to enumerate them. In a general way, sound health, a fair education, a willingness to work, and an abundant common sense, are the essential preliminary qualifications.

From the Sairy Gamps of a former generation to the hospital nurse of 20 years ago was a long step, but this generation has undertaken to help not merely the stricken body but the blighted life as well, whether it has suffered from ignorance, poverty, human weakness, or misfortune. Many are the agencies employed in these various directions, but the peculiar services of the nurse, her natural means of coming into contact with those who need help, as well as her training in the very practical things of life and her cultivated ability to gauge the needs of the individual, make her a

It is true that advances are being made from time to time, in one direction or another, in all the schools, using the best means at hand or to be obtained to meet the cry for ever better service. An instance illustrating the tendency of the times is the arrangement at the Washington University in Missouri, where the training school for nurses and the social service department have been placed under a hospital committee made up of the heads of clinical departments (the professor of pathology taking the laboratory course), and the superintendent of the hospital. Thus instruction and laboratory work are given by men competent in their specialties. The instruction in the nurses' home is given by trained nurses. The English department of the university gives two hours a week of systematic class work. The probationary of six months is devoted to instruction in the fundamental subjects, a year of elementary ward work and instruction, a year of advanced hospital work and instruction, and a six months' period for special elective training in hospital administration, special clinical training, or social service work. There are also two scholarships for post-graduate work.

There are the means by which efficiency in nursing may be obtained at present, and they bear eloquent testimony to the importance with which the work of a nurse is regarded, not only in the restricted field of her individual efforts, but as a widely comprehensive factor in bettering the conditions of the community at large. It is a great work and opens up wide avenues to greater possibilities. Be proud, then, of your profession, as you have good right to be. Be proud of the school which took you in as raw material and sent you out a finished product, the story of its workmanship upon you. Excellent as may be the work of this school and of this hospital, their reputation will be helped or injured by the quality of the work that you personally do when you have left its portals. Be proud of yourselves, of your attainments and of your ability to do what other women cannot do, and which is justifiable, but it is justifiable only so long as it serves high purposes and keeps within the bounds of a self-respect that compels the respect of others. As you are and as you do, so will every other nurse who has been graduated from this school be judged; for so long as you wear the same uniform, and the same pin, your successes or your failures will be reflected upon each and all. Give to the world the best that you have, always trying to make that best a little better. In so doing you will reap your greatest rewards, and attain the highest efficiency in nursing.

and filled a suit case which he found there with property of Mr. Killow. Among the articles said to have been stolen were one pair of pantaloons valued at $2; one shirt valued at $6; two sweaters, valued at $2; one pair of light valued at 25c; one pair of dark valued at $3 and one suit case valued at $15. The goods were brought to this city and disposed of, but later recovered and Weber was arrested after some clever detective work on the part of Officer Cullinan. The continuance was asked for this morning so that a woman who claims to have been held up Wednesday night could see the police in the morning, although there is no evidence to connect him with the hold-up. Early Wednesday evening it is claimed that a young man with his face covered by a handkerchief called at the camp of John Silva at Willow Dale and demanded money from Mrs. Silva who answered the knock at the door. The latter called to her husband to get the money, but he was not in the house, and fled. The alleged hold-up man away. Weber was held in $200 surety.

Tricks of the Filver

Because his little Filver refused to ramble right along and stalled twice on Middlesex street, once on the railroad crossing, David Bourdeleau attracted the attention of a couple of police officers with the result that he appeared in court this morning accused of drunkenness and operating an automobile without a license. He pleaded not guilty to both complaints.

Patrolman Joseph Clark said that his attention was called to the defendant when the latter's Ford was stopped directly on the railroad crossing near the Middlesex street station. There were no lights on the machine, it is said. Bourdeleau was at the wheel and a companion was turning the crank but the engine refused to move and the motions of the pair drew a large crowd. The officers, assisted by some of the bystanders, backed the car off the tracks and into a garage. Bourdeleau was treated to a ride in the big Thomas limousine known as "Black Maria." Patrolmen Clark and Jerome Cullen testified that the man was very drunk. The latter said an empty beer bottle was found in the machine. He also testified that Bourdeleau offered $1000 for his release without going to the station.

Bourdeleau blamed the Filver for the trouble. He said he stalled the machine driving up Middlesex street and after turning around and starting back stalled it again. A large crowd gathered and he caused the appearance of the officers. Judge Fisher adjudged him guilty of both offenses, placing the drunk charge on file and imposing a fine of $50 for driving a machine while intoxicated.

A Delinquent Husband

Adelard Calieux earns $1250 a week and spends the odd 50 cents for baseball pool tickets according to the testimony offered when he was arraigned in court charged with failing to support his wife since July 1, when they separated. Adelard admitted his guilt by pleading guilty but wanted an opportunity to relate his version of the affair and did so.

Mrs. Calieux stated that her husband left home because her 15-year-old son, did not work. She said he is a plasterer capable of earning good wages and good money. He had been playing pool tickets and shooting craps. She produced a handful of baseball tickets alleged to have been found among her husband's effects. When the defendant testified in his own behalf he said he was willing to go back to his wife and provide a home if she would only stop drinking; but he objects to beer parties. When questioned relative to the baseball pool tickets he said he purchased two each week for 25 cents each from a resident of Lakewood avenue, whose name he could not recall. He said he had been buying the tickets for many weeks, but yet had failed to win a prize. "I was the fish and somebody else was the winner," he said, when further questioned by Sust, Welch.

Relative to the allegation made by his wife that he shoots craps, Adelard said he got over that long ago and now only buys pool tickets. He said he won some money "once" shooting crap and turned that over to his better half and would have done likewise with baseball pool money provided he had been a winner. He said work is slack now and he seldom gets in a full week but the court opined that he could well afford $6 each week to support his wife. The defendant said that he could not possibly do so but when told he could have his choice of making an attempt or going to jail, Calieux declared that he would try and was placed on probation.

Noisy Sunday Christening

A Sunday christening during which beer bottles and other weapons were used with human beings as targets was responsible for the presence of Stanley Kapee in the dock. Stanley pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault and battery upon Elizabeth Kosiba but after a hearing was adjudged guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $20. He appealed.

Before the trial a woman who was supposed to testify said she did not care to say anything against the defendant, Mrs. Kosiba, her husband and a five year old son were the witnesses for the government. It was stated that all were drinking beer and that Kapee struck Mrs. Kosiba on the face during her black eye. The court found the husband and son guilty of striking his wife and also adjudged that his wife assaulted him, the husband, with a beer bottle. Kapee denied the assault but admitted he was intoxicated and could not remember all that happened.

To the State Farm

Michael P. Harrington, drunkenness, was arrested on a capias for failing to pay a fine of $15 and was sent to the state farm. There were a few releases by the probation officer.

ICEHOUSE COLLAPSES

Undermined at Lake Massabesic—Tide Carries Furniture of York Beach Family Out to Sea

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 6.—Rivers and lakes in this part of the state are swollen to an alarming extent as a result of the storm. The official records in this city show that the rainfall Wednesday was 2.88 inches.

At Lake Massabesic the southeast corner of the Manchester Deal & Ice Co.'s ice house was undermined and collapsed, with the loss of several hundred tons of ice.

Word was received here that the tide on the coast drove the surf at York Beach, Me., so high that the water trapped the family of Mrs. Michael Sullivan of this city in their cottage. They were rescued by neighbors and watched their furniture carried out to sea by the tide.

At the plant of the Lancaster Mfg. Co. 30 feet of the canal embankment was carried away, putting the hydraulic power plant of the company out of commission.

At Bartlett's mill the dam went out. On the intervals hundreds of acres of corn and potatoes are overflowed. The Seven Bridge road, between Lancaster and Bolton, had to be closed, as the water was flowing over it to a depth of three feet.

PELTON VISITS BROOKS

NEW YORK BOXING PROMOTER
SPENDS FEW DAYS WITH GAR-NER IN LOWELL

Jerry Pelton dropped into The Sun office yesterday for a short talk. Pelton is the manager of Gardner (Joe) Brooks, the local bantamweight fighter, who he is visiting for a few days. Jerry arrived from New York yesterday to find out if Joe was in the best of health, for a short time ago, on account of boils, Brooks had to cancel a bout with Eddie Campi and Jerry was anxious to ascertain just what was the matter.

But Brooks is feeling fine these days and expects to go back to New York the last week of this month to fight him in the big city.

"Too bad Joe couldn't go through with that Campi date," said Jerry. "I think Joe would have beaten him easily, and then I could have secured a match with Johnny 'Kid' Williams, the champion John W. Wrenn, the manager of Phillett's field, where open air fights are held, and the Broadway A. C. saw Brooks wane through Perry Aubrey and at once gave me a bout for my change the one with Campi, only to have Joe get ill and upset my plans."

Jerry Pelton has only one ambition and that is to crown his protégé king of the bantams. He also said: "Mark my words, Gardner Brooks will be at the top of his division inside of a year if he takes care of himself, which I feel sure he will."

Mr. Pelton told how hard it was to secure bouts for Brooks at the start and how he finally landed him where he is today, feared by every bantam in Philadelphia and New York. He related how he went up to a matchmaker and asked for a date and the matchmaker asked who Brooks ever beat. When Jerry showed his record the matchmaker exclaimed nobody around here knows those fighters and therefore he will have to start at the bottom and convince the fans he is there. Mr. Pelton will stay in Lowell a few days and then go to Boston and try and secure a bout at the Atlas club for his protégé.

MERKLE OF GIANTS NOW BATTLING
DEMON OF NATIONAL LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Hats off to Fred Merkle, the Giants' first baseman, who is now cavorting around in the outfield. Probably no man has been censured by both critics and the public as has Merkle since he broke into the major leagues. But now Fred has the laugh on every one. Since the start of the 1915 season he has played brilliantly in the field, at the bat and on the bases. Right now he is giving Jake Daubert of Brooklyn a great run for the batting honors of the National league. Manager McGraw recently sent Merkle to center field and put Brainard on the initial station. McGraw believes Merkle will develop into a great fielder.

CITY CLERK FLYNN ISSUES ANNUAL REPORT ON BIRTHS, MARRIAGES AND DEATHS

City Clerk Stephen Flynn has issued his annual report on the births, marriages and deaths, and according to the report the deaths have exceeded the births during only six years since the incorporation of the city, those years being 1847-1849, 1852 and 1853. The total number of deaths during those six years was 6156 while the births numbered 5605. The greatest number of deaths in one year was 2225, which occurred in 1852 with a population of 77,636, while the largest number of births in one year was 2869 in 1914 with a population of 196,584.

The report also shows that in 1843 there were 209 fewer marriages than in the preceding year, while in 1891 the number of marriages dropped 162 from the preceding year. The biggest drop noticed in marriages was 305, which occurred in 1905 as compared with the year 1907. In 1914 a drop of 103 was noticeable from the preceding year. The largest number of marriages in one year was 1135 in 1860, when the population was 94,360 and the smallest was 219 in 1881 with a population of 25,163.

The increase in population for every five years from 1845 was something wonderful and was quite regular. The greatest increase was between 1855 and 1860, the increase during this span totaling 12,559, while the largest decrease was between 1860 and 1865, the time of the Civil war, totaling 6537.

Between 1855 and 1860 there was a decrease of 727. Between 1865 and 1870 the decrease numbered nearly 6000. From 1865 up to the present year there was but one decrease in the population and that was between 1890 and 1905, the decrease being 80. The increases for periods of five years were as follows: Between 1870 and 1875, increase, 8769; between 1875 and 1880, increase, 8797; between 1880 and 1885, increase, 4222; between 1885 and 1890, increase, 12,559; between 1890 and 1905, decrease, 80; between 1905 and 1910, increase, 10,610; between 1910 and 1915, increase, 10,10.

HEAVY TRADING IN STEEL

EAGER BIDDING AT OPENING—U. S. STEEL TOUCHED 72 1/2 AND BETHLEHEM 307

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The strength of the industrial sector, broadened in a large amount of buying orders over night and at the opening today there was eager bidding for the popular issues. Trading in U. S. Steel was unusually heavy. It opened with 7000 shares at 70 3/4 to 71 1/4, a new high record since 1912 and an over night gain of a point. Subsequently there were transactions in blocks of 1000 to 2000 shares. Bethlehem Steel rose 9 points to 290, as compared with its previous high record of 230. Continental C. Co. gained 1 1/4 and a large number of other specialties 1 to 3 points. Allis-Chalmers, which lost two points, was the only one of the war stocks to show weakness. Railroads were again neglected. Southern Pacific was heavy.

Execution of the early buying orders exhausted the immediate upward movement and the list fell back on realizing and bear selling. Gains were realized on oil and several issues recovered materially under yesterday's closing. Stocks came on the market freely and there was more activity on the down grade than when prices were advancing.

The fact that a large amount of life insurance is seeking investment and indications that a stubborn short interest in particular stocks has been driven in brought in outside buying which carried some stocks to high levels. Bethlehem Steel touched 72 1/2. Near the close the list rose vigorously again under the leadership of Crucible Steel which jumped to 73 3/4. Bonds were steady.

Pool activity in Rock Island started a general buying movement among railroad shares in the afternoon. St. Paul, Canadian Pacific, Reading, Rock Island and Kansas & Texas preferred advanced 1 1/2 to 3 points.

The final dealings gave another glimpse of the determination of rising strength. U. S. Steel touched 72 1/2 and Bethlehem 307. The closing was strong.

ERIE, PA., SLOWLY RECOVERS FROM FLOOD WHILE SEARCH IS MADE FOR VICTIMS

SCENE AT FRENCH AND SIXTH STREETS WHERE SEVERAL BODIES WERE FOUND.

Several hundred families who lost their homes are in temporary quarters, and the state militia is patrolling the flood district in Erie, Pa., where hundreds of men are searching for bodies. Virtually all of the bodies found so far have been identified. Out of one family of six only two children escaped, John Higgins, his wife, a fourteen-year-old son and a fourteen-month-old baby being drowned when their house was lifted from the foundations and swept against a culvert in East Sixth street. Fifty business houses and 300 dwellings were swept away. In one house at Seventeenth and French streets there were twelve people when the rush of water took the building from its foundations. All rushed to the attic and the house was carried down French street, striking the New York Central overhead tracks. Frank Blacker, one of the occupants, managed to scramble out of a window to safety as the house crumpled against the railroad bridge. After an all night and all day search he was unable to locate any of his companions. In the accompanying illustration is shown the district where the remains of the Higgins family were found; also a scene at French and Sixth streets.

39 KNOWN VICTIMS

24 BODIES RECOVERED, IS IDENTIFIED AT ERIE, PA.—SEARCH CONTINUES

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 5.—Late this afternoon it was announced that 24 bodies had been recovered, 15 of which had been identified and a list of names of 39 known missing persons was the correct toll of victims today of Tuesday night's flood. Coroner Hanley said today that he thought the death toll would reach 75, being swelled by the probable loss of a number of foreigners whose houses were swept away on the banks of the creek at Ninth street. The search continues.

BODY OF SAILOR FOUND

WAS SECURELY LASHED TO THE COMPARTMENTWAY OF A CABIN—HAD BEEN IN WATER A WEEK

WELLS BEACH, Me., Aug. 5.—Securely lashed to the compartmentway of a cabin, the body of a sailor was found today between Wells beach and Kennebunk beach. The condition of the body indicated that it had been in the water at least a week. There was nothing in the clothing to identify it. Much wreckage was washed ashore during the storm, but there was nothing to indicate from what vessel it had come. The body was discovered by Carl Farrell of Drake's Island while pulling lobster traps. It was that of a man about 35 years of age, weighing 175 pounds and about 5 feet, 10 inches in height. The color of the hair is brown. The clothing was practically new.

GOV. WALSH BACK HOME

Enthusiastically Greeted at All Stops Made in State—Great Reception in Boston

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—Governor Walsh returned yesterday afternoon to Massachusetts after an absence of four weeks and one day, still silent as to his political plans. He arrived in Boston at 2:55, on the train which brought the other members of the Massachusetts delegation to the Panama-Pacific exposition.

Not even the governor's closest friends could induce him to say what his course will be, but reasoning, apparently, that "silence gives consent," every political associate expressed the confident belief that the governor will run again. To the newspapermen who boarded the train in New York state the governor said that he would make no announcement until he reached Boston, and that it would be at least 24 hours and possibly longer before he would issue a public statement.

The governor was met at Pittsfield by Adj. Gen. Charles H. Cole and members of the military staff, who accorded him the official welcome of the commonwealth.

All the steps made in this state developed into enthusiastic receptions, not the least of which was that of Pittsfield, where fully 1000 persons, headed by Mayor George W. Faulker and accompanied by a brass band, assembled at the station. Other demonstrations took place in Westfield, Springfield and Worcester, but the largest was the last—here in Boston.

The governor addressed great crowds at the South station and at the state house. He then went to the executive offices, where he remained for nearly an hour. Late in the afternoon he proceeded to his apartments at Hotel Lenox and still later he journeyed to Clinton, to spend the night with his family.

Mayor First to Greet Governor

Mayor Curley was the first person to greet the governor as he stepped off the train at the South station. After a brief conversation with his closest friends, who had been admitted inside the gates, the governor and his party went through the station while the crowd cheered and the 3rd Regiment band played "Hail to the Chief."

Then a procession was formed. First came the band; behind it were the automobiles and they were followed by a large number of pedestrians who walked up Summer street to Washington, to Seel, to Beacon street to the state house.

Speaks to Crowd at State House

The people on the streets kept the governor busy taking off his hat, and another crowd had assembled at the steps leading up to the state house. There the governor, having left his automobile, turned to the crowd and said:

"I thank you all for this cordial greeting, especially the mayor of Boston, who has taken time from his busy hours to bring the official welcome of the city of Boston."

"We have traveled a long way—more than 10,000 miles. We have been amazed at the expense and resources of our country. Everywhere we have met sons and daughters of Massachusetts, who have gone west and helped to build up the great states in that section of the country."

"The people of the west are full of optimism, pluck and energy, and it has been a great privilege to meet and associate with them. But the people we have met here are no less energetic and have made us proud of our history, of its reputation, and of the respect it commands all over the country."

"I was particularly proud that at the great exposition which we visited Massachusetts received the first prize in the departments of education and public health."

"These things show that Massachusetts is second to none in the real essentials of government. For, after all, it is not wealth, or invention, or material prosperity that make a state great; it must be judged by what it does for its people."

"I was proud of our building at the exposition. To everyone who saw it it was the emblem of free government, which was established as far as this country is concerned—in Massachusetts. Our building is the great patriotic shrine of the exposition."

"We have come home, having absorbed, as we hope, some of the optimism of the west, and more eager than ever to do all we can to 'hooch' Boston and also Massachusetts and to make our state the best in the union."

"Everything I have seen has made me prouder than ever of Massachusetts and has filled me with a sense of the deep obligation which I owe to the people of this state, for the honors they have given me. I hope to show my appreciation by striving harder than ever to be worthy of Massachusetts and to give her, as far as lies in my power, the best government on earth."

"Back again on the steps of the state house, I urge you to help us to make Massachusetts a beacon light, so that her sons and daughters, both here and elsewhere, may have a greater measure of health and prosperity."

After the governor had finished speaking Mayor Curley proposed and led three cheers for the governor. The latter accompanied by the members of his staff, then went to the executive department, where he held another informal reception.

Crossed the State Line

When the Massachusetts delegation caught the first glimpse of the Berkshire hills from the windows of their special car as the train crossed the state line between New York and Massachusetts yesterday morning, the men of the party, with Speaker Channing I. Cox as chairman, sang again the "official song," the authorship of which is laid to Speaker Cox. It runs like this:

Then I guess I'll take the train back home.

There isn't anything that's left to see.

I've dined and wined, and read all hills.

'Till mother's home-made pies look good to me.

California is a grand old state.

But she can't beat a good old home.

Massachusetts, my own state.

Massachusetts, gee, that's great!

So I guess I'll take the train back home.

And the singers meant what they said. They had a good time, but they were glad that the trip was over. The Boston newspapermen who clamored aboard the train were cordially greeted. Of course, the first question asked was "Is the governor going to run again?" The governor was very pleasant when the query was put. He evidently expected it. But he would not reply.

Others in the party said they did not know any more than the people in Boston, but they felt certain the governor would be a candidate.

Rep. Henry Achin, Jr., of Lowell, Rep.

John B. Hall of Great Barrington, Sen. John W. Hains of Montague, who took the place of Pres. Calvin Coolidge of the senate; Rep. Edward P. McLaughlin of Boston, who has returned to begin his campaign for senator in the 11th Suffolk district; Rep. Frederick H. Lucke of Worcester, Sergt-at-Arms Thomas P. Pedrick, Capt. William B. Stearns and Maj. William J. Casey of the governor's staff.

Those who traveled at their own expense with the party included: State Treasurer, Miss Ellen Mudge Burdell, secretary to the sergeant-at-arms; Mrs. Elizabeth Kimball of Lynn; Miss Elsie Kimball of Lynn; Michael J. Dwyer of Boston and his daughter, Miss Frances Tracey Dwyer; Mr. and Mrs. Edward McLaughlin of West Roxbury; John B. Pelham of Lowell; Col. Charles L. Woodward of Wakefield; Charles A. Southworth, stenographer in the executive department; and Mrs. Southworth.

WAS FORCED TO RESIGN

CHIEF POSTOFFICE INSPECTOR OF BOSTON BLAMES POLITICS AND SCORES CIVIL SERVICE

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—"I have been forced to resign because of politics, and this is a democratic administration, which must take care of men looking for jobs."

"For thirty-three years I have served the postoffice department without a reprimand, an investigation or a censure, until six weeks ago. I resigned rather than be discharged."

"The civil service is a farce. It can keep out of jobs men who cannot pass the examination, but it can never keep a man in a job. Boston is a splendid city and some of its best men have sought to have me retained. I intend to remain here, but I have no immediate plans for the future."

"I am willing to stand on my record of 33 years and I am not going to get down on my knees and beg to be taken back."

These were the expressions last night of Lawrence Letherman, postoffice inspector in charge of the New England office in Concord, in his resignation letter of resignation forwarded yesterday morning to Chief Postoffice Inspector J. C. Koons at Washington, and it took effect last night.

This morning Mr. Letherman turned over his office to S. H. Moore, a postoffice inspector of the Spokane district, who was yesterday appointed by the postoffice department to succeed him.

MINERS IN MONS STRIKE

GROUPS OF MINERS COLLIDED WITH GERMAN SOLDIERS—RIOT FOLLOWED

HAVRE, France, Aug. 6, 5:20 a. m.—Miners in the Mons district have gone on strike. According to reports received here groups of miners collided with German soldiers and a riot followed, during which two Germans and seven miners were killed.

Disorders are also reported from Charleroi, resulting from the high cost of food, the stores having been pillaged. German troops are said to have charged a crowd of civilians which had congregated, killing ten and wounding 40. Four battalions of the landsturm have been sent to Mons and two to Charleroi.

Dupont Powder Announces an Eight Hour Schedule on Ten-Hour Wage Basis

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 6.—Approximately 50,000 employees of the Dupont Powder company were notified yesterday that their working day would be reduced to eight hours and that the wages would remain the same as they now receive for 10 hours.

An order to this effect was posted last night at the Brandywine plant of the company and today it was extended to plants throughout the country.

The new schedule will start tomorrow in some of the plants and by Sept. 15 it will be in effect universally.

The reduction in hours will apply to employees in all departments. It was estimated by officials that the new order would increase the operating expenses about one-third.

EXPLOSION OF DYNAMITE

WINDOWS IN SEVERAL HOUSES SHATTERED—REPORT HEARD MILE AND A HALF AWAY

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—The explosion of a small stick of dynamite at Chandler and Chapel streets, West Somerville, at 3 p. m. yesterday afternoon, shattered windows in houses on both those thoroughfares, frightened the women of the neighborhood and was heard as far away as city hall, a mile and a half.

The dynamite was exploded by one of the foremen in the employ of F. T. Ley & Co., contractors. It was left on hand, according to the police, after enough had been used to excavate a hole in Chapel street, for a telephone and electric light pole.

Sergt. Lynch, who investigated, reported that the dynamite was placed on the surface of the street and exploded by means of a battery, 60 feet away.

CELEBRATION IN BERLIN

JUBILANT OVER SUCCESSES OF GERMANS IN TAKING WARSAW AND IVANGOROD

BERLIN, via London, Aug. 6, 12:12 p. m.—The Berlin newspapers today published no additional details whatever concerning the fighting which preceded the fall of Warsaw and Ivanogorod.

Warsaw's fall had been discounted in advance of the event, and the news evoked no demonstration in the capital. When the report of the capitulation of Ivanogorod came, however, impromptu processions were formed in Unter den Linden. One considerable band marched before the palace of Crown Prince Frederick William last evening and the crowds were addressed by extemporaneous speakers.

The morning papers comment jubilantly on the news, but the whole with restraint. The Lokal Anzeiger says: "This, unfortunately, is not the end of the conflict, but it is a new promise that our cause marches on."

FRENCH DISAPPOINTED RIVER PROBLEM

HAD HOPED THAT WARSAW WOULD BE SAVED—VICTORY NOT DECISIVE

PARIS, Aug. 6, 5.25 a. m.—While the fall of Warsaw had been discounted here some time ago the delay in the capture of the city had given rise to the hope that the Polish capital might still be saved and its occupation by the Germans is something of a disappointment to the French public. The military necessities dictating the abandonment of the city are fully recognized but it also is realized that the Germans will claim a great victory, from which the people of that country will derive much encouragement. The press points out, however, that the victory is in no way decisive because the Russian army remains intact.

STORM AT WILLOW DALE

As a result of Wednesday's rain and wind storm, a number of motorboats owned by residents of Willow Dale, now lie at the bottom of Lake Mascopie, while a number of wharves have been blown away.

The motorboats, most of which were tied to the wharves, were filled with water and blown over by the wind, later sinking near the shore. They will all be recovered, but it is feared some of them have suffered serious damage. Several wharves were torn away and the wood scattered on the water.

The water has risen several inches, and some of the houses have been flooded. Rowboats were scattered all over the lake, and yesterday the owners were searching the lake for them.

Development of Merrimack—$10,000,000 to Cities and Towns

A delegation from the Lowell board of trade waited on Col. W. B. Craighill, head of the U. S. engineering department in Boston, yesterday, for the purpose of presenting new data concerning the deepening of the Merrimack river. The delegation consisted of President Robert F. Marden, Secretary

HON. JOHN JACOB ROGERS

John H. Murphy, Congressman John Jacob Rogers and Daniel F. Carroll. The conference which had been asked by Congressman Rogers was held at the army engineering office, and the congressman acted as the spokesman for the delegation. He discussed the river plans with the engineer, asking if it were to be understood that the engineer still considered the query as to the commercial value of the river channel as the chief problem. The colonel answered in the affirmative and further stated he considered it of chief importance to be certain that when a channel should be built there should prove to be some suitable amount of commerce using it, and said he would dislike to have the channel built and then find there was no particular use for it.

The congressman pointed out that the residents of the valley had made a supreme effort to collect extra data on the business side of the project and had succeeded in providing the government engineers with what was believed to be facts up to date as to the commerce. He urged it as fitting for the government to spend a proper proportion of the cost of the entire channel even if it could not see its way clear to pay for the whole of it.

The colonel had no hesitation in saying that the valley cities and towns would find it a good business proposition to spend $10,000,000, the estimated total cost of the channel and terminals, on the project. The delegation is now hopeful that the report on the river would not dispose of the project in such a way as to annul the months of hard work on the part of committees in the valley in producing data.

Later in the afternoon the Lowell delegation visited Engineer Ralph Sweetland of the New England Insurance exchange and asked that the fire experts hasten their report on the possibilities of utilizing the Locks & Canals' water mains in some way as an adjunct to the city's water supply so as to make it unnecessary to meet some of the requirements for expensive additional fire apparatus.

Riding under difficulties: The High street car which left the Highland end at 8.15 this morning, was momentarily held up at the Middlesex street grade crossing by a passing train. As it turned the corner of the Middlesex street crossing it was held up again. The High street car had not arrived. After waiting over five minutes at this point it proceeded to the grade crossing at the corner of Dutton street and here all passengers were obliged to get out, cross the tracks and enter another car waiting in Dutton street. The second car then started on its way and got as far as Broadway when it found a Highland and Broadway car waiting together. After another wait the two cars in its way were shifted into Broadway. It proceeded along Broadway toward Merrimack street, running along beside it was a freight train also bound for Merrimack street. As it luck would have it a woman wanted to leave the car at Merrimack street thus permitting the freight to nose it out and once more there was a wait until the freight got by. But the car landed in Merrimack Square eventually.

IVANGOROD FELL

Occupied by Austro-German Forces, Says
Official Report

VIENNA, Aug. 6, via London.—The occupation of Ivangorod yesterday by Austro-German forces is announced in an official telegram from the front.

The evacuation of Ivangorod, apparently was admitted last night by Petrograd in an official statement which said:

"In the Ivangorod district the Russians have crossed to the right bank of the Vistula, blowing up the bridges behind them."

A statement issued later in the night explained that the Ivangorod forts were not properly constructed for modern warfare. This statement was made "in reply to the Austrian claim that a great victory was achieved in Ivangorod's capture." It further states that all the provisions in the city were "methodically" removed after which the Russian rear guard blew up the concrete basins supporting the brick casements of the forts, destroyed the bridges and crossed the river. Ivangorod is situated at the confluence of the Vistula and the Vepz rivers. It is on the railroad running to Lukow and Brest-Litovsk and also on a line connecting with Warsaw.

BERLIN REPORTS CAPTURE
BERLIN, Aug. 5, via London, Aug. 6, 11:30 a. m. (Delayed in Transmission).—The Russian fortress of Ivangorod, situated on the Vistula river, 45 miles southeast of Warsaw, was captured by the Teutonic armies today.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT
NORFOLK, Conn., Aug. 6.—The semi-finals in the Connecticut tennis championships at the Norfolk club will be played today in the afternoon. The match was made last night that Vanderbilt Ward of New York had been eliminated through defeat by N. C. Stevens, while as a fact it was Stevens who lost to Ward, the score of the match being 5-4, 5-6, F. A. Watrous, however, who had been expected to be in the semi-finals, was beaten by H. H. Plummer of New York.

CAR CAUGHT FIRE
A Highland car caught fire on Coral street early this afternoon and called out a portion of the fire department. There were few passengers on the car and they stepped out to see what was going to happen to the "auto." The fire was quickly extinguished and no damage resulted.

REPRESENTATIONS TO SERBIA
NISH, Serbia, Aug. 6, via London, 2 p. m.—Another step in the effort being made to bring about a Balkan agreement so that Bulgaria, Rumania and Greece may be mustered on the side of the entente powers was taken here today by the ministers of Russia, Great Britain, France and Italy, who made collective representations to Nikola Pachitch, the Serbian premier.

AFTER LEE'S SURRENDER TO GENERAL GRANT

The soldiers of Grant at Richmond, began without order to salute him with cannon, but he directed the firing to cease so that it might not unnecessarily wound the feelings of the prisoners, who, he said, were still our countrymen. Bless his memory.

How many of us daily, for want of thought, hurt each other unnecessarily. Those who live under the same roof and at work can spoil each other's day by little sharp thorns of speech.

Warm weather customers require utmost alacrity and courtesies for they are often hurried to catch a car or impatient to meet an engagement.

KAISER'S TRIUMPHANT ENTRY INTO WARSAW

With Warsaw and Ivangorod Captured and Fall of Riga Expected, Austro-German Onslaught Has Reached Its High Tide in the East—Semi-Autonomous Rule for Poland

LONDON, Aug. 6, 12:10 p. m.—With the great Russian fortresses of Warsaw and Ivangorod captured and the fall of Riga, the capital of the Baltic provinces, imminent, the Austro-German onslaught has reached its high tide in the east and the next step will be the German emperor's triumphant entry into the Polish capital. That event is likely soon to be followed by the pronouncement of a united and semi-autonomous Poland, embracing not only the territory wrested from the Russians but Austrian crown land of Galicia.

Russians Fighting Desperately
Meantime the Russian armies are fighting their way backward toward Russia proper, inflicting blows on the invaders wherever possible, trying to fend them off the railway running north and south, in order that the ends of the German nippers may not meet and, in closing, bring disaster to Russian arms.

The position of the army of Grand Duke Nicholas now is a matter of so-called Helldorf, as the occupation of Warsaw is believed to be a prelude to the greater purpose of enveloping the retreating forces.

Russian Wreck Bridges
Petrograd reports show the grand duke has retired to the right bank of the Vistula both at Warsaw and Ivangorod, destroying the bridges at both points, and contesting the German advance across the river.

Back of the retreating Russians is the vast morass of central Poland, with few railways and primitive roads, making virtually impossible a quick movement of guns and supplies, while back of Warsaw, the only fortress available as a rallying point for the Russians is Brest-Litovsk. Thus the Russians are menaced by Gen. von Buelow's columns bending southward and by Field Marshal von Mackensen's southern army bending northward.

Fall of Ivangorod
The fall of Ivangorod proper, forecast in the Russian retreat from the west of the city, is officially reported today in bulletins from Berlin and Vienna.

The occupation of Warsaw now is centering attention on a series of important events that are being arranged. First will be the selection of a German governor. Reports indicate the appointees will be a German prince, possibly a son of the German emperor, or an Austrian archduke, who will be vested with authority akin to that which Napoleon gave to his brothers and to his marshals as kings of occupied territory.

Berlin reports that a council on Sunday will formulate a proclamation declaring Poland to be a semi-autonomous state under joint Polish and Austro-Hungarian rule. This conforms with a recent decision of a Polish congress held at Piotrkow, Russian Poland, which proposed a joint Polish and Austro-Hungarian rule with a separate Polish army, and the fullest Polish autonomy consistent with the strategic interests of Austria-Hungary.

Autonomy to Poland
The German offer of autonomy is regarded as a bid for the population of Poland as against a similar declaration of Emperor Nicholas promising eventual Polish autonomy under Russian suzerainty. The outcome of these events in Warsaw probably will determine the political status of Poland during the war.

What the Germans will do next in a military way, after attempting to complete their enveloping movement, is a matter of much speculation. If the campaign against the Russians is not energetically pushed there is the possibility of the present victories being undone, while if an offensive in the east is continued the Germans face the rigors and dangers of a winter campaign in Russia.

Conservative students here think it will result in a compromise, in which the Germans will withdraw part of their eastern army, leaving enough men to maintain and secure the defensive positions when they have dug themselves in.

AT THE DARDANELLES LOST BARGES RECOVERED

GEN. SARRAIL APPOINTED TO REPLACE GEN. GOURAUD AT HEAD OF FRENCH FORCE

PARIS, Aug. 6, 2:35 p. m.—An official report given out by the French war office today reads as follows: "At the Dardanelles, since the beginning of August, there has been no striking developments to report, the activity being confined to intermittent artillery duels and much movement on the part of the aviators."

"The government has decided to replace Gen. H. J. E. Gouraud, commander of French expeditionary force at the Dardanelles, by Gen. Sarrail, who has been named commander in chief of the army of the Orient."

General Gouraud was appointed commander of the French forces at the Dardanelles in May of this year. A despatch from Paris on July 8 said he had been wounded in the fighting on the Gallipoli peninsula and that it had been found necessary to amputate one of his arms.

REPLY TO AUSTRIAN NOTE

PRES. WILSON RECEIVES DATA RELATIVE TO REPLIES FROM SEC. LANSING

CORNISH, Aug. 6.—President Wilson received from Secretary Lansing today data under stood to relate to the replies shortly to be sent by the United States to the Austrian note on the shipment of munitions of war to the allies and to the last German note on the sinking of the William D. Frye.

The president has become impatient over the time consumed in receiving replies to communications he has sent to members of his cabinet, and today he went to the Windsor, Vt. office personally for the second time to inquire about his mail.

After his early morning game of golf the president went to his study to work on correspondence and an official business received from Washington. He planned to take an automobile ride later this afternoon.

ORGANISTS ELECT OFFICERS
SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 6.—The following officers were elected by the National Association of Organists today: President Arthur Scott Brook of New York (re-elected); first vice president, Arthur H. Turner of Springfield; second vice president, Homer N. Bartlett of New York; secretary, Robert T. Barrows, New York; treasurer, George Henry Day of New York.

Henry G. Chapin of Springfield was made the first honorary member of the association. The convention practically decided on Springfield as the next meeting place.

MAJ. SCOTT AND COL. MICHE GO TO EL PASO

Will Discuss The Mexican Situation With Villa and Other Revolutionary Leaders

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Maj. General Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff of the United States army, accompanied by Lieut. Col. Robert E. L. Michie, member of the general staff, will leave Washington at 6 p. m. today for El Paso, Tex., to confer with General Francisco Villa and other revolutionary leaders regarding the Mexican situation.

MEXICAN OUTLAWS RAID TOWN
BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Aug. 6.—Mexican outlaws today raided the village of Sebastian, 37 miles north of here, killing two men. United States cavalrymen from Harlingen, 12 miles distant, have gone to Sebastian.

Fifteen rangers and armed men started from nearby points for Sebastian and nearly every man in Harlingen armed himself to hunt for the outlaws.

The dead were Al Austin, president of the Sebastian Law and Order league and his son, Charles.

The league recently forced several men of bad reputation to leave Sebastian. About 3:30 o'clock this morning Austin and his son were running a corn sheller when armed Mexicans galloped up, took both into the brush nearby and killed them.

CONFERENCE RESUMED
WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The six Latin-American diplomats working with the American government to bring peace to Mexico had a series of conferences at the Argentine embassy today before they resumed their conference at the state department. They discussed their deliberations with the same secrecy as was thrown about yesterday's meeting.

Gen. Carranza's refusal to meet the other factions in a peace conference was the first obstacle to be disposed of. It was believed the diplomats considered that question at their preliminary conference. The plan as it stood at the close of yesterday's conference was to send Carranza a last invitation, backed by the moral force and authority of all Pan-America to join his adversaries in an effort to have Mexicans settle Mexican affairs themselves.

Today's meeting was expected to go far toward developing the alternative. The Latin-American diplomats are understood to favor for president of Mexico some man who will represent the great majority of Mexico's inhabitants who are not fighting under any military leaders. They consider that the fighting forces represent but a small percentage of the population.

Secretary Lansing said that there might be some public announcement tonight, dependent upon developments. A telegram forwarded to Secretary Lansing from Carranza's commissioner of the treasury in Mexico City says 50 relief posts had been established.

TO PROTECT AMERICANS
NOGALES, Ariz., Aug. 6.—Battery C of the Sixth United States Field Artillery arrived from Douglas, Ariz., today to protect American lives and property from the fire of the warring factions in Sonora, Mexico. It was stated that the battery had orders to shell either of the Mexican factions that sent bullets into American territory.

The Carranza forces which attacked Nogales, Sonora, Wednesday and then withdrew, have drawn closer to the town with reinforcements, which are said to consist of 300 men and two pieces of artillery.

It has been definitely established that bullets flew in the American town of Nogales during the fighting Wednesday.

TRIBUTE TO MRS. WILSON

SCORES OF CHILDREN AND MANY ADULTS PLACE FLOWERS ON HER GRAVE

ROME, Ga., Aug. 6.—Scores of children and many adults paid tribute to the memory of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson today, the first anniversary of her death, by placing flowers on her grave. The hour from 9 until 10 o'clock this morning was set aside for the children. Many of them went to the cemetery with only a single blossom which they placed among the mass of floral tributes sent by organizations and individuals in many parts of the country.

The Ellen Axson Wilson Memorial association held services at the grave later. Dr. G. G. Snyder of the First Presbyterian church, who officiated at Mrs. Wilson's funeral, led the services.

RUSSIANS FLEE FROM RIGA

for Removal of Warsaw Mills
and Factories to Interior

LONDON, Aug. 6, 1915. — The Russian war office has set aside $25,000,000 to help pay the cost of the removal of Warsaw mills and factories to
the interior of the empire, says the Petrograd correspondent of the Times.
The Warsaw retreat is less the direct outcome of engagements on the front line and in the Nowo Georglewsk region than the result of the strategic situation as a whole. In the region of Ostrova and the mouth of the Skwa the enemy threatened to cut our rear communications and deprive us of the opportunity of re-grouping while by their advance in the Lemna district which is threatening to overshadow even the Vistula front in strategic importance, the Germans are striving to effect a deep envelopment

of our forces on the Vistula river.
Should this advance be further developed it would be directed against Bialystok and Brest-Litovsk
from the north. It is quite likely Field Marshal von Mackensen will transfer his troops from the Gabeln
district to cooperate in this attempt.

Another factor was the auxiliary operation on both banks of the Vistula against Lukow, intended to cut the Babegrod-Lukow line.
Today's news warrants the conclusion that the fate of Riga is sealed.
The country on this side of the Mussala where fighting is proceeding at present, does not afford the Russians a line capable of stemming the enemy's advance but is suitable merely for rear guard actions. The river Dvina is intuitively a more formidable obstacle, but as this is situated on both sides of the river, it does not afford opportunities for effective defense.
Two corps of Gen. von Buelow's army already have reached the Dvina.
The evacuation of Riga is in full swing. The streets are packed with dense crowds and the stations are bu-stowed with those anxious to leave.

"The evacuation of Milan was effected by the past office employees and the police last Saturday. German residents were greatly delighted at the arrival of their countrymen. They had made no secret of their sympathies."

Milady's Boudoir

The Culture and Face
Women of today do not have the luxuriant growth of hair that was manifest in older times, a fact that was undoubtedly due to the treatment to which the hair was subjected. This scantiness of hair is a source of worry when it comes to arranging the coiffure. When such is the case, and one does not wish to adopt artificial hair, one must then rely upon the use of a headress or hair ornaments

to fill in the vacancy and detract from
the scantiness.
The arrangement of the coiffure,
however, cannot make a woman beautiful unless the face expresses that attribute. Perhaps little lines are not affecting themselves here and there upon the face. They may be due to age, habit or weather, but from what ever cause steps should be taken to arrest their progress. I have found the following sufficient, providing its use is begun in time. It is not only an attractive but a most valuable.

Have water boiling, then immerse pieces of quinine seed in 20 ounces of water for 40 minutes. Strain, add 10 ounces of pure alcohol, and a few drops of scent if desired. When cold, bottle and keep tightly corked. This should be put on the face before the going to bed at night, first working it with fingers. When a fresh application is made allow it to dry on.

In making the morning toilet after the face wash, an equal quantity of the lotion and water is poured into a bowl. This is applied to the face, neck, hands and arms, allowing it to
dry.

The French Maid Says:

Caring for the Refrigerator
"I am afraid something will have to be done to our refrigerator," remarked Majorie to Marie. "Since the hot weather struck us, it seems to me it does not smell as sweet as it used to."
"If the box is wood I would advise giving it an air bath inside and out," said Marie. "Open all the doors and dry every part before cleaning. Then give it a thorough scrubbing with hot water, soap and borax. Remove the shelves and allow the box to cool and dry before using. If the shelves are

in these damp, water soaked shelves lurk bacteria. These invisible foes are difficult to destroy and it is only by constant vigilance that you can combat them.
"Wooden shelves absorb odors, and once becoming impregnated with these,
it is almost impossible to get rid of
them. If one must use wooden shelves give them an air and heat bath at least once a week. Remove the shelves and soak them in boiling water.
Keep them at the boiling point for half an hour, set in a hot oven for an hour and then rub all over with a solution of formaldehyde, wipe dry and put in the sun for several hours.
"Metal shelves with heavy coating of enamel are easily taken care of.
Keeping all corners and shelves as well
as dishes used, perfectly dry and clean, keeping the temperature of the box at
a low degree and the air dry, will lessen the danger from bacteria.
"See that the food is put at once in
the refrigerator. If this is left out
from fever-infected spots covered with germs, some of these must necessarily adhere to the damp surface of the meat. The cold in the box is powerless to stop the growth of germs, it can only retard it, and retard or not the food becomes unfit for use.
"Foods cooked or prepared should not stand around the kitchen but should be put at once in the cooling apparatus of the refrigerator. Lastly de-cayed food should never be placed in the refrigerator. You do not succeed
in 'keeping' it and you fill the wood compartment with the bacteria-laden air that settles upon the food in the box."

CORN LAID LOW BY STORM AT THE CITY FARM—POTATO PATCH UNDER WATER

Wednesday's storm raised havoc with the potato and corn crop at the Chelmsford street hospital, and Supt. Conley stated this morning that an acre of potatoes was totally ruined by the rain. He said the whole crop on this land is under water, but the loss will not be great inasmuch as this was low land and he was only experimenting with potatoes. This acre of land was never planted until last year on account of being low, and chances are it never will be again.

The wind and rain also raised havoc with the field corn, a lot of it being blown down. Mr. Conley, however, states the institution will not suffer from the loss of this corn for the crop this year is exceptionally large.

The three bathrooms in the women's infirmary are completed and now the inmates of the institution are enjoying the use of the baths. The large cement coal pocket which has been under construction for some time will be finished tomorrow and by the first of next week the employees of the public buildings department will start on the construction of the pistol target at the Dracut range.

This will be a costly job inasmuch as a cement barricade will be constructed overhead the target and a large pile will be dug underneath and covered with cement. The target will be constructed by Major Colby T. Kittredge, who has been appointed by the adjutant-general to look after its proper construction in compliance with military regulations.

Contract Awarded

The contract for 5000 plants for the park department was awarded by the purchasing agent to Morse & Beals, whose bid was $86.40. The other bids submitted were as follows: Whitte & Co., $92.30; Harvey B. Greene, $102.

Meter Tester

Commissioner Carmichael will have a new meter installed at the pumping station in West Sixth street. This meter tester, which is a big improvement over the old one, will test 10 meters at one time, while the old one now in use and which is practically out of commission, only tested three meters at one time.

Memorial Building

Commissioners Duncan and Putnam and Architect Graves were busy this morning looking over the specifications for the plans for the repairing of the Memorial building, and the writer was informed that bids for the various contracts will be called for early next week.

IN AMERICAN COLLEGES

INCREASE OF SEVEN PERCENT IN NUMBER OF STUDENTS IN 1914 OVER 1913

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Increase of nearly seven percent in the number of students in American colleges, universities and technological schools in 1914 over the previous year is shown in the annual report of the federal commissioner of education, which has just been made public. The figures are 216,493, compared with 202,231 in 1913.

The report shows that men still outnumber women in higher education. There were in colleges 130,273 men in 1914 and 77,120 women, as compared with 123,644 men and 73,557 women in 1913. Despite higher standards of admission and graduation, college enrollment has more than tripled since 1890.

Benefactions to colleges and universities during the year totalled $26,670,017, an increase of about $2,000,000 over the year previous. Six institutions received benefactions in excess of a million dollars apiece, and 45 universities, colleges and technological schools reported gifts amounting to more than $100,000.

PALMER'S CANOE TRIP

Shortly after Jackson Palmer's arrival at the Pawtucket boat house yesterday afternoon he was met by a Sun representative, and together they strolled down the canal walk which runs along the Northern canal to select a safe landing for the canoe. After picking out a spot where a landing could be made without fear of upsetting the frail craft, "Jack" told of his experiences on the first two days of the trip, the conversation being interrupted by the Sun man to accompany him on the remainder of the journey. The worst dangers of the trip, he said, had been successfully encountered and the only obstacle to be met with on the last leg would be at Hunt's falls. This he said would be gone over without fear of upsetting, and The Sun reporter accepted the invitation.

The husky lawyer then went back to the Pawtucket bridge where he put his craft into the water and paddled down stream before the eyes of several hundred people to the spot selected for the landing. The trip down stream took less than three minutes, and in due time he was carrying the canoe on top of his head to a point near the Little Canada playground, where it was launched in the Merrimack. A crowd of probably 300 had gathered at this point to watch him start out.

A crowd of probably 3500 had gathered on the Centralville bridge to watch the young lawyer on his trip to the falls, which can be seen from any point of the bridge, and the majority of them waited until the canoe shot around the first bend in the falls. While passing under the bridge he was given a great ovation, and for some time he was kept busy waving the big sombrero, which he wore, in response to the cheers of his admirers. But very few people were seen along the banks from the bridge to the far end of Stackpole street, but at this point a sight to behold was witnessed. Standing on the long retaining wall which runs along the Stackpole street side of the river was a fellow with a big six shooter in hand which he was using with marked effect, while by his side stood an athletic young fellow waving an American flag. A short distance below a large crowd had gathered to watch the canoe shoot the falls, and when Palmer here in sight he received another ovation.

From the time the start was made below the Moody street bridge until the men with the flag and gun were sighted, The Sun man had been wearing a heavy blue overcoat, but before the falls were reached, Jackson cautioned him to remove the wrap, as it would probably be much easier swimming without it. This was done and the start was made for the falls. The Sun man wanted Palmer to make the trip through the channel, but he was obdurate and insisted on going through the middle of the falls to give the people on the banks a little excitement in payment for their journey down the river to witness the feat, and there was no shaking him in his intention. The people on the river banks undoubtedly were much pleased with the performance, not so The Sun man. The first thing he knew, the front of the canoe dove down like a submarine, and in a second another wave came and lifted the frail craft high in the air, while still a third breaker came and washed over the front of the canoe, nearly drowning the news writer. But the worst was yet to come. About midway in the falls, after going through several darknesses such as has been related, the canoe was caught by a monster wave, and turned completely around, and the boat took several gallons of water as a result of turning on its side. The craft would have capsized only for the skillful manipulation of the paddle by Palmer, and if ever the big fellow worked, he worked at this moment. After the falls had been passed over, and the canoe turned in to the shore and the water dumped, Jackson said it was the narrowest escape he had on the whole trip. He was wet up to the thighs while his passenger might as well have undertaken to swim through the falls, so completely drenched was he.

The remainder of the trip to Stanley's was paddled without mishap, hundreds of campers lining the banks to query Palmer about his trip and to offer congratulations. The arrival at Stanley's was made at 7:27 p. m., which was very slow time for the last few miles, but this is accounted for by the fact that after Hunt's falls had been passed, Palmer simply contented himself with steering the canoe with his paddle, the stream doing all the work.

On his arrival at the down river resort, he was met by a large gathering of admirers, and after enjoying a much needed rub-down by that prince of artists, Trainer Jimmy Mahan, Palmer delighted the gathering for an hour with an account of the entire trip.

CLAIM IDEAL ANTISEPTIC

Discovery of Drs. Carrel and Dakin Expected to Be of Immense Value in Surgery

PARIS, Aug. 6.—Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller Institute of medical research and Dr. Henry D. Dakin of the Lister Institute have discovered after exhaustive experiment at the Compiegne military hospital, what they claim to be the ideal antiseptic.

The most powerful antiseptic known to science is hypochlorite of lime, but its use is injurious to the tissues, owing to its acidity, and it does not keep.

Drs. Dakin and Carrel have found these two defects are remedied respectively by the addition of carbonate of lime and boric acid.

Wonderful results have been obtained with the new antiseptic, and it is applied in time it is said to make infection in wounds henceforth impossible.

Grafton D. Cushing in the contest for Governor:

"I see by the press that a large number of republican officeholders, past, present and hopeful, have publicly declared themselves in favor of Mr. McCall as the republican candidate for governor. At least one republican officeholder—to wit, the writer of this letter—has not yet declared himself in favor of Mr. McCall, for the reason that he considers that your nomination is essential to republican success in Massachusetts this fall.

"You and I, my dear Governor, are well aware of the fact that the younger men of the republican party, and the younger men of the progressive party, firmly believe, whether rightly or wrongly, that for a number of years back the management of our party in the state of Massachusetts has not rested in the hands of persons ready to approach modern problems with open minds. Inasmuch as I am absolutely convinced that the republican party cannot be put on a sound footing in this state, or elsewhere for that matter, until there is new, liberal, open minded blood infused into the veins of its management, I am seeking an opportunity to assist your candidacy.

"It is my intention to offer you a reception at my home in Hamilton, for which I hope very much that you will do me the honor to set the date. "To that reception I shall invite all citizens of my congressional district, and of the towns of Peabody, Middleton and Boxford, localities which I represented in Washington for ten years. "At this reception I shall not be able to array a formidable Phalanx of the party big-wigs; but I am in hopes that their absence may be offset by the presence of large numbers of citizens who ordinarily take no part in political meetings."

DYNAMITE ON LINER

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—It became known at police headquarters here today that a stick of dynamite was found aboard the White Star liner Arabic before she sailed from this port for Liverpool on July 25. The explosive, in such a state of deterioration that experts said it would have exploded at the slightest jar, was found by a stewardess between hot and cold water pipes.

It was reported at police headquarters yesterday that a bomb had been found in one of the foreign consulates in New York. Investigation of the report caused the police to tell that the dynamite had been found on the Arabic instead.

The explosive was discovered the day before the steamer sailed with more than 10,000 tons of cargo, almost all of which was war supplies. One hundred and eighty-eight passengers, among them 12 Americans, were aboard.

BIG CONVENTION

Firemen From All Over the State Will Come Here Tuesday

With delegates present from every city and town in the state where there is a fire department composed of permanent firemen, the third annual convention of the Massachusetts Permanent Firemen's association will be held in Associate hall, this city, Tuesday. The all day session will be followed by a banquet in the evening which promises to eclipse anything of its kind held in connection with a convention in this city for many years.

The delegates will arrive in this city early in the morning and at 10:30 o'clock will assemble in Associate hall where the business session will be called to order by President Burton Steere, assistant chief of the Springfield fire department. The annual election of officers will be held and other business will be transacted. Among the topics that will be discussed are the two platoon system which provides for 12 hour shifts for the firemen, and the advisability of instituting a death benefit fund in connection with the state organization. An effort will also probably be made to devise some scheme to boost the campaign for one day off in five for firemen in this city and Taunton. Lowell and Taunton are the only two cities in the state where the firemen are not given one day off in five and the fire fighters from the other cities of the commonwealth are out to assist their brethren to get on an even basis with them. The question will be on the ballot next fall and the Lowell association will work for the benefit of the Lowell and Taunton firemen. An hour's recess will be given at noon and a buffet luncheon served in the old Knights of Columbus hall.

The convention will be brought to a close in the evening with an elaborate banquet with city and state officials present as guests. A fine list of speakers has been secured for the occasion and the South End minstrels will be present to contribute to the evening's program.

The state association was instituted three years ago in Lynn and now has a membership of nearly 2000. The officers who will officiate at the convention are: President, Burton Steere, Springfield; vice presidents, John T. Connerly, Somerville; Thomas L. Pope, Salem; and John T. Henderson, Cambridge; secretary, Thomas J. Powers, Worcester; treasurer, Ernest A. Slatery, Fitchburg; board of directors, Edward J. Barry, Brockton; Thomas J. Burke, Fall River; John J. Kelley, Lawrence; Harry J. McNeely, Boston; James J. Crowley, Holyoke; James A. Cameron, Everett; John P. McKay, Beverly; Frank B. Brynes, Chelmsford; finance committee, William H. Hawkins, Haverhill; John T. Parker, Brockton; Willis Holt, Lowell; sergeant-at-arms, Daniel Hannan, Peabody.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the convention are: General committee, Chief Edward F. Saunders, chairman; Capt. Herbert Merrill, James Lannon, John Rinehart, Willis Holt and Edward Cunningham, catering; Messrs. Rinehart and Merrill, invitation; Messrs. Cunningham and Merrill, printing; Messrs. # THROW FLOOD GATES OPEN

The Locks & Canals Co. is being greatly handicapped in the work of mending the break at the Pawtucket dam. The work, as a matter of fact, is very nearly at a standstill and it was stated today that the company is apprehensive of danger to the coffer dam that is being installed because of the freshet caused by the very unusual amount of rain. If the coffer dam should be swept away it is feared that other portions of the main dam might go with it. In order to obviate the threatening occurrence the company has thrown the flood gates under the Moody street bridge open in order to relieve the pressure at the dam and it is estimated that 25,000 cubic feet of water a minute is rushing through the flood gates. All but about 20 feet of the break at the dam has been repaired and so high is the water at the present time that it is flowing over the dam from one end to the other.

THE PROGRESSIVE PARTY

LEADERS DISCUSS ITS FUTURE AT ALBANY, N. Y.—G. W. PERKINS TALKS

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Up-state progressives met here today to discuss the future of the party, particularly as to putting candidates in the field at the fall election. It was expected that between 40 and 50 leaders from various parts of the state would be here before the meeting closed tonight. George W. Perkins of New York was expected to arrive some time during the day.

Henry J. Cochran, Albany county chairman of the progressives, today announced his intention to return to the republican party. George W. Perkins told the leaders that the progressive organization is the only one that stands for preparedness for peace as well as preparedness for war. "When the war broke out, because of the Wilson tariff, our business was undergoing depression and thousands of men were being thrown out of work. The large war orders this country received from Europe have enabled us to put these men back to work. When the war stops this war business will stop. To avoid the impending catastrophe, Mr. Perkins favored the creation of an expert non-partisan commission that will take the tariff out of politics. As to next year, Mr. Perkins discussed the possibility of a candidate for president or if he would support Gov. Hiram Johnson of California for the place.

HIS EXPERIENCES AT SEA

Bertram D. Bent, son of the late William H. Bent, has done with the sea and is devoting his spare time to the study of law, the profession in which his father attained such notable proficiency. It was Mr. Bent's great desire to have Bertram engage in the practice of law, but having been born in Newburyport, the lad was in love with the sea and fairly captivated by stories he had read of life on board ship.

Young Bent made a good sailor, but the splash of the waves no longer lull him to sleep, for he has become a landman, and there's a reason. Bertram is a married man. His wife is the daughter of James P. Ramsay, probation officer of the superior court. The Bent-Ramsay nuptials took place some seven or eight years ago, all of which is related by way of introduction to Mr. Bent's latest endeavor, that of public speaker, and they do tell that Bertram is none other than the son of the late William H. Bent.

He delighted the boys at the Concord reformatory recently with the story of his experiences at sea. He spoke of them as being commonplace but his auditors didn't think so. There was too much fun—and tragedy—in the story to consider it commonplace. "Our Paper," published at the reformatory, contains the following report of Mr. Bent's address:

Mr. Bent's address was check full of humor and interest, and he kept his audience laughing, and continually guessing what was coming next. To say that he was appreciated would not do him full justice. He was enjoyed every minute.

Mr. Bent said it made no difference what a man's profession was there was usually something in his early life that led up to it. Mr. Bent came from Newburyport, which, at one time, did a large shipbuilding business. The last ship was built there in the year in which he was born.

By the time that Mr. Bent was thirteen years old he had read up thoroughly on ships and knew every rope, although he had never actually seen a square-rigged vessel. And he wanted to go to sea, not as one of the "white gang," but "before the mast." He spoke to his father about it, but there was "nothing doing." The father wanted him to stay at home, be a good boy, go to school, etc., in fact he wanted him to be a lawyer.

But the young Mr. Bent made up his mind he was going to sea. About the time he was graduated from the grammar school, he laid his plans to run away—all on his allowance of $1 a week. So, he saved his money for a month or two and, believing it to be the best way to have a "row," he "skipped."

The ship McLaurin, which was the last ship built in Newburyport the year he was born, was to sail from New York. So, he went to Boston and bought a sea-kit in a sailors' junk shop on Causeway street. "Junk shop" is a sailor's phrase for a store where one can buy anything needed from clothes to tobacco. Mr. Bent also bought a sea-chest, and began to act as if he were a real deep-water man at last. And then, he started for New York, where the McLaurin was loading.

When he got there he did not know how to get to Pearl street, where the ship's office was located. He had about his chest was too large for him to carry. At last he arranged for a man with a wheelbarrow to carry the chest and a canvas bag, which he also had, and he walked to Pearl street.

He arrived at the office 15 minutes before closing time. He was so small that his head just came above the edge of the counter. But he signed on as

boy for the voyage, and went aboard the ship.

In those days it was very hard to get a crew of sober men. Some of them had to be hauled aboard with tackle. And so it was in this case. The crew was mostly drunk, and the captain had to hire a gang of riggers who had been at work on the ship, to take her outside the bay. They anchored at Montauk Point, and there the riggers left.

Just Getting Acquainted

On the following morning the second mate started to get acquainted with his crew. He asked the boy if he could handle a hand-pump. The boy said he could, so he was ordered to rig up the forward pump. A hose was stuck through the port window of the starboard forecastle, and then the second mate called to know if all was ready. It was.

"Pump," he ordered, and the boy pumped. The men came boiling out through the door like drowned rats, and the first and second mates, standing, one at each door with a belaying-pin, cracked each one over the head as he came out, to bring him more thoroughly into his senses. They were fairly sober in short order.

After this rude process of sobering off, the men got sail on; the chafing gear was rigged, the litter 'tween decks was stowed, everything was squared up and the ship went on its way to Rio de Janeiro.

The first event of any importance to take place, was "crossing the line." No man is really considered a sailor till he crossed the line—that is, the equator—and has been shaved by Neptune.

Mr. Bent said that the ceremony of crossing the line, and had figured out about when the equator was due. On the day he had forecast as the day of crossing, his watch was the early watch. He thought that "something was up," so instead of going to his bunk when his watch was finished, he went aloft into the main-top.

Around the edge of this platform are a series of holes through which parts of the rigging are roved. These are called "look-out holes," and by using that he could look through one of them and see all that was happening on deck without being seen himself.

Everybody was on deck, even the "Old Man," as the captain is always called. But the second mate and two of the sailors were not to be seen. There was a fine breeze and the ship was sailing at a good rate, when suddenly, over the bow came the hail, "Ship ahoy!"

"Hullo!" answered the captain. "What ship is that?" again called the voice.

"The ship McLaurin, bound for Rio!" replied the captain.

"Have you anybody aboard who has not crossed the line, or been shaved, by Neptune?"

"I believe we have," said the captain. "Very well. We are coming aboard," and in a moment old Neptune himself, clad in a bathing suit, with a long beard made of rope-yarn, and with his trident in his hand, clambered aboard, accompanied by two policemen. Those policemen were seafarers.

By Was Discovered

There was a sort of throne placed on the quarter deck and the man who had not been shaved ascended this throne and was shaved. After Neptune had finished he said:

"Where's the boy?"

"In his bunk," someone said. But sure enough the boy could not be found. Finally after they had searched everywhere, Neptune and his two aides went over the bow again. Mr. Bent thought himself safe, so he descended from his perch, but, the moment he landed on deck the two "policemen" were back again, and had him in their clutches.

Under Neptune's commands he was taken to the throne, in which he was placed. Then Neptune asked him his name, where he came from, and numerous other questions. Immediately back of the throne was a tub of water. It was dirty water. They also had a brush, and a pan of stuff called soap, but it wasn't. The razor was a part of a barrel-hoop. It was sharp in places, dull in places, and full of rust and nicks.

After the preliminary questions, the boy was asked if he had any gold filling in his mouth. He answered that he had two.

"Let's see them!" said Neptune. Unsuspecting, he opened his mouth, and then he was covered with the brush, and then he was shaved with the barrel-hoop. It was rather a painful operation, and just as he thought it was through he was pushed into the tub of dirty water. He was now a full-fledged sailor.

After a pretty decent trip the ship arrived at Rio where it discharged its cargo and took a stone ballast, sailing from Rio to Singapore, by way of the Cape of Good Hope.

Mr. Bent told of many amusing incidents on this cruise, and how, finally, when he got back to New York, and it was time to leave the ship he cried like a baby. For though the life of a boy aboard ship is hard, he had grown to love his ship very much.

The speaker told of some of the schemes resorted to in the past in order to get men to work ship. Some of them were rather ludicrous, but some were the height of injustice.

Aboard the Enterprise

After some time spent ashore, Mr. Bent felt the longing for the sea again, and, finally, he shipped aboard the Enterprise. On board this ship, managed by the commonwealth, boys were taught navigation, seamanship, in fact, were taught to be officers aboard a merchantman.

He told of the initiation each boy must go through on first going aboard. The experiences were very amusing in the telling. Mr. Bent's narrative of the times spent in foreign ports were highly interesting, taking in Havre, in France, Gibraltar, and Funchal, Madeira.

He spoke of the slide that is taken down a mountain in Funchal, on a peculiar kind of sled, which was infinitely more exciting than the same slide would be on snow. On the way back home they stopped at Bermuda, where one of the boys fell overboard.

When he fell he had a broom, and when he was picked up afterward he still had the broom, though he had been in the water over two hours.

It is Mr. Bent's opinion, and that of many more, that at the termination of the present war in Europe, there is going to be a tremendous boom in the American merchant service. Any young man who goes to sea and learns to be

Former prices, profit expectations, real worth of merchandise must all be forgotten in the determination to clear this stock of all summer goods at the earliest possible moment. We must make way for Fall. That is what "The Quarter Back" is looking forward to, because in the Fall "The Quarter Back" is in his glory and he is anxious to disburse these Summer Goods. That is why he is playing havoc with this stock now. Making inroads to it through the most terrific campaign of price-cutting on high quality merchandise that this town has ever seen. He is smashing the line right and left. He is downing prices and pounding holes through for you to come in and make your gains. And this town is feeling the impact too. Such rushing for the bargains, such response to the offerings and such enthusiastic acceptance of the advantages indicates on all sides that men know unequalled opportunities when they see them.

The senator said the bill would be "protective in its nature containing a horizontal reduction of 15 or 20 per cent on many of the duties contained in the Payne bill, but reinforcing some of the schedules, like the chemical schedule, to the extent that may be necessary to secure these industries in our country. THE STAMLER, HOME FOR GIRLS, WILL BE CLOSED ON AUGUST TWENTY-EIGHT

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Warning that the oldest hotel in New York will be closed on August 28 when more than fifty working girls are to be sent ashore from the ship Jacob A. Stamler, today caused much unhappiness among the occupants of the floating hotel. A notice posted on the bulletin board on the Stamler's deck read that Arbuckle's deep sea hotel company had decided to retire from the hotel business and will serve no meals after August 28. For years the Stamler has been a home for girls employed in shops and stores at a cost to them varying from $2.50 to $3.50 a week. Many of them earned only $4 a week and 14 of the girls are now unemployed. The city fire department had ordered changes to be made in the Stamler, and it was said that the company did not wish to go to the expense of making them. The old ship, built in 1867, was purchased by John Arbuckle in 1901 and for several years has been moored at a pier in the East river as a home for girls.

MAINE APPLE CROP FAILS

Harvest Usually Worth $1,500,000 Will Be About $250,000 According to State Horticulturist

AUGUSTA, Me., Aug. 6.—It is believed here that there will be a loss of over $1,500,000 in Maine due to the crop alone by reason of the wet weather.

Orchardists in central Maine say that much of the apple crop will be a failure. Beyond a few barrels of poor fruit from the best trees, for making cider, some of the orchardists will not harvest. State Horticulturist Gardner says that the Maine apple crop under normal conditions is worth $1,500,000, whereas the 1915 crop will probably not exceed $250,000.

A QUARTER CENTURY AGO

"Donovan batting for Quinn!" cried the umpire in the eighth inning of the game between the Lowell and Boston police teams at Spalding park, Tuesday, and the grand old man of baseball in Lowell stepped to the plate. He got first on the error of the first baseman, went to third on a bunt, and scored on a passed ball. The Lawrence papers have been waxing enthusiastic over Charlie Wadlin, who at 54 years of age is pitching for the Lawrence police, while other papers throughout the country are lauding Heine Wagner, who at 51 years is still with the big show. But Police Officer Jack Donovan at 50 years of age is still playing ball after being in the game 33 years continuously—some record.

One would never guess that Jack Donovan was 50 years of age though the fact that his son Eugene is a college athlete and playground instructor for the city of Lowell would indicate that he is no chicken. But with a baseball uniform on and running after a fly right field Jack would impress the spectators that he was in the 30's instead of in the half-century class.

Way back in 1853 when there was no New England league team in Lowell Joe Callahan, baseball and horse-racing promoter, organized a team from the North common, which he called the Lowell team, and arraying them in uniforms, a luxury in those days for the North common players, sent them all over the state playing semi-professional ball. Among the players on that team were Jack Donovan, Charlie Hartwell, Eddie Cull, Jack Guthrie, Connie O'Hearn, Henry Maguire and others. Out of the entire team Charlie Hartwell was the only one who survived. Charlie possessed a budding mustache of which he was very proud, but none of the others could show anything more than the cat-hair of extreme youth. For the next couple of years Jack Donovan played around in the commons and in 1858 became the catcher of the famous Hood team with John "Roger" Connors, the former "Pride of the Acre" as his pitcher. The old Hood team was known all over New England and on the reputation they received with the Hood's Roger and Jack got an engagement with the Big Rapids, Mich., team of the Northern Michigan league in 1857 and both went there in the spring of that year. They made a big hit in this league and on their recommendation Eddie Cull and "Roger" Connors got jobs with Big Rapids and the four Lowell men played on the same team. In the Michigan league Connors and Donovan were known as the "Irish battery" and they were exceedingly popular. Big Rapids went bad and as other teams were clamoring for their services Roger and Jack asked for their release, and it was given to them on condition that they could not sign with any team in the northern Michigan league. They started playing independent ball and when the Evansville, Ind., team withdrew from the league they signed with Evansville and continued with them until the close of the year.

Organized Indiana League

The following year Connors went further west where he afterward became known as the "Walla Walla Wonder" while Jack Donovan went to Elkhart, Ind., where he made his home for over 10 years afterward, becoming one of Elkhart's best known citizens. Jack not only caught for Elkhart, alternating with Lou Criger, who afterward became the famous Boston catcher, but became captain and manager of the team and he it was who organized the Indiana State league which ever since has held a prominent place in organized baseball. At the close of the first season Jack was not allowed to depart but was given a job as a fireman on a train running between Elkhart and Chicago, a job that he held for several years, playing ball in the summer and working on the railroad in the winter. Leaving the railroad job he became a member of the permanent fire department of Elkhart, and was permitted to play semi-professional ball during the summer, playing two games a week. In the winter he promoted athletic indoor events and aroused in Elkhart a lively interest in boxing and wrestling. Famous boxers to that city, officiating himself as match-maker and referee. Jack met his fate and married in Elkhart, while two of his children were born there. In the early 90's his arm went bad temporarily and he abandoned the catcher's job going in the outfield. He returned to Lowell in 1886 with his family and has made his home here ever since. When he got back the old Urban and Suburban league was running and Jack's services were demanded, but he saw more money in umpiring, and with Frank Kenney did the umpiring during the strenuous days of that little league. An umpire's job was no sinecure in that league; just ask Frank Kenney about that Emerald-Union 7 to 7 game on the Fair Grounds, when he called the game at the close of the ninth inning to prevent a rough-house. Shortly after his return to Lowell Jack became a conductor on the street railroad and a member of the local street railroad ball team. Upon becoming a member of the police force he started the police baseball team and has played with the department team ever since, never missing a game. This year he has played in each game, going in as a pinch-hitter or relieving some one of the outfielders, and he is also president of the Massachusetts Police Baseball league, having been one of the organizers of that league. Jack comes from a family of ball players, his brothers Connie and Eugene having been connected with the famous old Emerald team of the North common, Connie playing the infield and managed the team and Eugene, behind the bat and on the record base. His son Eugene, the present Holy Cross college football full-back and playground instructor, is also a baseball player along with being the first man to score a touchdown against Harvard last fall, when Harvard played the Holy Cross team. Jack's first game in Big Rapids was a memorable one. In the early part of the game he received a foul tip that broke the small mask that the catchers wore in those days, inflicting a cut over the eye that required five stitches. Jack refused to leave the field and the game was held up while a surgeon did the job in full view of the audience after which Jack resumed playing. I recall the description of the game in the Big Rapids paper which Jack sent home one line of which read: "In the seventh, Donovan, the new catcher, came to the bat with blood in his eye and more on his shirt" and he was there for a three-bagger on that particular occasion.

When Mahoney Played Here

Appropos of the reference to the police ball players and the days of the old Urban and Suburban league, it might be well to correct a slight mistake that appeared in the morning paper relative to the appearance of big George Mahoney, the Boston police catcher and former Georgetown athlete in Lowell prior to last week. Mahoney appeared here to play with the Y. M. C. I. team against the Emeralds, in a game at the Fair grounds, in 1898 or thereabouts when the Urban and Suburban league was going good and there was great rivalry and excitement over the games. In that old league the Emeralds representing the North common, and the Union representing North Chelmsford, played the same lineup throughout the season, while the other teams when a big game was on went out of town and engaged star batteries, bringing some first class "hitters" to Lowell. On this occasion while the game was scheduled as between the Y. M. C. I.'s and Emeralds, the former team was really a combination of the Unions and Y. M. C. I.'s, for Tip O'Neil, Pat Nestor, "Jerky" Boyle and Joe Quigley, of the Unions were in the line-up. Manager Dolan of the Y. M. C. I.'s went to Boston and secured the services of George Mahoney and one Smith, who had been released from Philadelphia the night or who afterward joined them. I don't recall which. Mahoney had left Georgetown and had tried out with Boston Nationals and was some pitcher. The pair came to Lowell for the magnificent sum of $15 and when the word was passed around the North Chelmsford and Belvidere followers of the game went to the banks and drew out their money, expecting to make a clean-up. The backer of the Emeralds was the late "Johnnie" Rourke, who bet on the North common team against all comers. The backers of the Belvidere team went looking for "Johnnie" and he had a big roll with him. But it happened that Mike Mahoney, the umpire was on the field as a spectator and he quickly recognized both Mahoney and Smith and, going to Rourke, advised him not to bet. Johnnie took his advice and kept his money in his pocket and kicked himself afterward for while Mike's advice was well meant, the Emeralds won the game for Tip O'Neil made two errors that let in two runs and Pat Nestor made another that brought home the third and the final score was 3 to 2 in favor of the Emeralds. "Smiling" Mike Kane, manager of the South Ends was the umpire and he had a strenuous time. Mahoney pitched what was called a "snake ball." It looked awful bad as it came along, but always broke nicely and came over the plate. Every time that George would hand over that snake ball, Mike who was behind the bat thinking that it was coming for his head would duck and yell: "Bail, bail, not waiting to see what time it will go over, a perfect strike, and the bunch in the grand stand would bowl out the umpire for ducking. Billy Connors and the late Dan Murphy were the battery for the Emeralds and the funny thing about it was that while Billy Connors was generally a goodly fellow, he was the only Emerald on this occasion who could do anything with the delivery of the mighty Mahoney, making four singles in four times up. That was Mahoney's only appearance in Lowell until last Tuesday when he appeared behind the bat for the Boston cops, bigger and jollier than ever.

Ho, for the Beach!

God always loved the Irish and hence the Lowell Irish Benevolent had no such weather as we are getting these days when they held their annual picnic at Lynn beach quarter of a century ago. The Sun reported the event which occurred 25 years ago today, as follows:

"The annual picnic of the Lowell Irish Benevolent society perhaps was the most successful affair ever held by the society. A usual band made a tour of the city in the early morning, led by Mr. John Donahue, with an Irish plike which some of his ancestors used at the battle of the Boyne, in an attempt to rout the forces of William, Prince of Orange. The big day annually for Lynn—the Lowell picnic day, or as it was also dubbed—Lowell's Annual Wash day. For years the picnics were held at Lynn beach and they became so famous that people for miles around the city of Lynn, many of whom had never seen Lowell, never missed the big picnic and 10,000 strangers would assemble in Lynn on picnic day. Some of the Lynn factories declared a half-holiday when the Lowell Irish came to town. The Benevolents would start to advertise their annual picnic by window cards about the time that the snow disappeared in the spring so that everybody would get their warning. Then when the eve of the picnic arrived it wasn't a case of slinking: 'You must wake and call me early; call me early, mother dear.' John Doherty, himself attended to that little matter, and ere the sun had come over the eastern horizon, and it never failed to come, on picnic day, John Doherty and his band and his faithful followers would be pounding the highways and the byways of the Acre and the Flats, awakening everybody, in time for the first train. And talk about a fine time in Lynn! But these days are gone—'Gone, alas, like our youth, too soon.' THE OLD TIMER.

WOMAN IN BAD CONDITION

Restored To Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Montpelier, Vt.—"We have great faith in your remedies. I was very irregular and was tired and sleepy all the time, would have cold chills, and my hands and feet would blot. My stomach bothered me, I had pain in my side and a bad headache most of the time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me lots of good and I now feel fine. I am regular, my stomach is better and my pains have all left me. You can use my name if you like. I am proud of what your remedies have done for me."—Mrs. MAHY GAUTHIER, 21 Ridge St., Montpelier, Vt.

An Honest Dependable Medicine. It must be admitted by every fair-minded, intelligent person, that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for nearly forty years, and to-day hold a record for thousands upon thousands of actual cures, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, without possessing great virtue and actual worth. Such medicines must be looked upon and termed both standard and dependable by every thinking person.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to any of the women whose testimonial letters we are constantly publishing. They will tell you their experience and give you confidence to try the medicine.

or not." All flocked to the Boston & Maine station where two trains of 22 well loaded cars left for Lynn at 7.30 o'clock. Another special train left at 11.30 o'clock while many went down by the regular trains. It was estimated that over 2000 people attended the picnic and the day passed off most pleasantly, no accidents happening to mar the festivities. The Union orchestra furnished music for dancing. John Doherty was general manager and Daniel Shea was floor director. He was assisted by the following aids: Fergus McOsker, Morgan Riley, Michael Doyle, John Donahue, Hugh C. McOsker, John E. McGuire, Charles H. Callahan, Anthony McCarron and John Whitty.

The late John Doherty, the prime mover of all Benevolent picnics, was as well known in Lynn as he was in Lowell and could have anything he wanted in that city for he made one big day annually for Lynn—the Lowell picnic day, or as it was also dubbed—Lowell's Annual Wash day. For years the picnics were held at Lynn beach and they became so famous that people for miles around the city of Lynn, many of whom had never seen Lowell, never missed the big picnic and 10,000 strangers would assemble in Lynn on picnic day. ## ARMED MEN ON GUARD

OVER $1,000,000 TRANSFERRED TO TEMPORARY QUARTERS IN ORDINARY MOVING VAN. LAWRENCE, Aug. 6.—An unusual spectacle was furnished the people who happened to be in the vicinity of the corner of Lawrence and Essex street early yesterday morning when a heavily guarded furniture wagon was seen to leave the Bay State building and drive up to the old banking rooms of the Merchants' Trust company building at 233 Essex street.

Perhaps few of those who noticed this commonplace moving van with men walking beside it and men sitting on queer looking bundles wrapped in white paper within the team realized that at that moment "Wilson's furniture-moving van" was worth about $1,000,000. Nevertheless such was the case. The white bundles which the team contained comprised the contents of the Bay State bank's vault, a mere trifle, yet still every little thing counts in these hard times.

It was transferring over one million dollars in cash and securities from the bank's vault in its Bay State offices to the vault in the Merchants' trust company's old banking rooms, the Bay State's temporary quarters. The present Bay State bank quarters are to be remodelled. The bank officials acted

SUMMER FOODS AS CAUSE OF DYSPEPSIA

Effect on Digestive Organs Responsible For Many Ills

Summer should be the season of most perfect health but impure water and milk, unripe fruit and a tendency to over-indulge in acid foods and iced drinks results in a contrary condition in many people.

The effect of the average summer diet is to constipate even normally regular bowels, and disturb the digestion. This condition can best be corrected by the use of a mild laxative that has combined with it the elements of a digestive tonic. The combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that is sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is gentle, yet positive in its action and brings relief in an easy, natural manner, without griping or other discomfort.

A dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin on retiring each night will regulate the digestive organs and insure healthy activity, irrespective of one's diet. A bottle of this splendid remedy should be in every household. It is not expensive and can be purchased for only fifty cents in drug stores everywhere. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 133 Washington St., Monticello, N.H.

INCREASE FOR WOMEN PLAN BIG PARADE

Clerks to be Paid $8.50—Retail Store Board Reports—Minimum of $5 for All Under 17

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—Substantial increase in the wages of minors and female employees of retail stores has been established by the retail store wage board which has just made a report of its study of the conditions in this state to the minimum wage commission.

Perhaps the most noticeable increase is that made for boys and girls under 17, who hereafter will have to be paid at least $5 a week. The new schedule of wages will take effect at New Year's, and is as follows:

The minimum wage to be paid to any female employee who after reaching the age of 18 has had one year's experience in a retail store shall be $8.50 a week.

The wage for inexperienced female workers who are 18 or older shall be not less than $7 a week.

Minors between 17 and 18 shall be paid not less than $5 a week.

The wage for minors under 17 shall be not less than $5 a week.

The finding of the retail store wage board is along the same lines as that of the board which inquired into the wages paid laundry workers. Under authority of the legislature the minimum wage commission appointed a committee to inquire into the matter of wages paid in retail stores and this commission after many hearings has issued its report.

SILVER LOVING CUP

An important meeting of the members of the Young Men's Hebrew Association was held last night in the organization's quarters in Central st., with President A. S. Goldman in the chair. A feature of the evening was the presentation of a silver loving cup recently won from the Haverhill Y. M. H. A. baseball team, the presentation being made by Chairman S. Perlman.

The following committee was appointed for the purpose of looking into the matter of conducting a minstrel show at Keith's theatre: Leo Albertson, Julius Neyman, Harry Goldman, Sigmund Rostler and Max Goldman.

The convention club committee has mailed communications to Hebrew residents of this city who own automobiles, asking them to co-operate with the Y. M. H. A. delegates by going to Worcester, Sept. 4, 5 and 6.

SITUATION IN POLAND

LONGER EXPECTED, SAYS MAJOR MORAH

AMSTERDAM, via London, Aug. 6. 3.55 a. m.—"A lasting Russian offensive is no longer to be expected in the near future," says Major Morah, military critic of the Berlin Tageblatt in a review of the situation in Poland. "Henceforth, as soon as our attack begins the Russian defense must crumble because it is no longer adequately supported by rifles and machine guns. We doubt the possibility of reorganizing the Russian army during the present war."

The Business Session

Following a report by each of the parade committees recently appointed, a list of routine business was transacted, and the council went on record as endorsing the one-day-in-five bill for members of the fire department.

The Barbers' union reported a grievance in one of the local shops, and the matter was placed in the hands of the grievance committee. A communication from the Massachusetts state branch of the American Federation of Labor was read, in which attention was called to the vote of senators and representatives on bills referring to labor matters. The legislative committee was instructed to inspect the roll and report back to the council how the votes had been cast.

A communication from the Metal Polishers referred to a strike in Chicago, and a second communication called attention to a strike of horse-shoe nail makers in Connecticut. An appropriation of $10 was voted for the latter strikers. A number of other communications also were read, and these were referred to the proper committees for disposal. The grievance committee submitted its report which was passed upon as progressive, and the labor forward committee turned in a lengthy report, which showed the work accomplished since the last meeting.

The Blacksmiths' union, which recently became affiliated with the council, sent its first delegation to the session last night, and the new members did active work.

ESTATE OF $30,000,000

HUSBAND OF RICHEST GIRL IN THE WORLD CANNOT COLLECT CENT OF INCOME

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Although Catherine Barker, who recently was wedded to Howard Spaulding, Jr., was possessed of an estate said to approximate $30,000,000, her husband cannot collect one cent of the income, it became known today when a trust deed of the estate of the late John H. Barker, car manufacturer, was found in the office of the probate of Cook county.

The deed provides that the heirs shall receive $50,000 a year until she is 21 years of age. Then she is to receive $15,000 a year until she is 25 years old. After that time she is to receive the entire income of the trust fund, except what is necessary to pay other annuities. It also provides that payments to Mrs. Spaulding "are to be made directly to her by check or draft payable to her order, and shall not be made to any other person, or upon any written or verbal order given by her, or upon any transfer or assignment made by her or created by operation of law."

Mrs. Spaulding is given the power to dispose of the estate by will.

100 DRIVEN OUT BY FIRE

GUESTS FORCED TO FLEE—SUMMIT HOUSE AT JEFFERSON, MASS., DESTROYED

JEFFERSON, Aug. 6.—Nearly a hundred guests were forced to leave their rooms hastily when the Summit house, a summer hotel here, was discovered ablaze early today. The four-story wooden building was destroyed, causing a loss estimated at $10,000.

The fire started around an open fireplace. A night watchman who discovered it notified other members of the hotel staff and the guests were quickly aroused. Before all of them could get out the stairways were in flames and many were obliged to climb down the fire escapes or were assisted down ladders by volunteer firemen. Emmett Nawn, son of the owner, E. L. Nawn, was burned about the arms while assisting in the work of rescue.

OUR MERCHANT MARINE

The democratic administration has not abandoned its cherished plan to establish a government-owned merchant marine, according to recent pronouncements of Secretary McAdoo who is generally supposed to reflect the wishes of President Wilson in the matter. In a letter to the Greensboro, N. C., chamber of commerce, Aug. 4, Mr. McAdoo came out far more strongly for the American merchant marine than at any time during the agitation in congress that culminated in the defeat of the measure. The administration plans are especially significant at this time, in connection with the protests of American business at present conditions and the lack of adequate facilities to offset our absolute dependence on foreign shipping lines.

Secretary McAdoo is very emphatic in his declaration that we need a government-owned merchant marine not only for the transportation of our commerce but to constitute a naval auxiliary. He says: "We cannot be longer dependent on foreign flags. It is not safe to do so. We need American ships not only for the expansion of our commerce, but we imperatively require them as auxiliaries for our navy. A modern navy without adequate and suitable naval auxiliaries is rendered helpless for offensive operations at any considerable distance from its home base. We should be justified today in spending fifty to sixty million dollars for the creation of an adequate fleet of naval auxiliaries."

The truth of this is far more apparent now than when the American merchant marine was being more generally discussed. Since then, the war has widened in its scope, and we have seen the folly of being at the mercy of any foreign power, in a commercial sense. We have many commercial grievances with most of the belligerents and still we are compelled to go to these belligerents and our trade rivals for the service that American private capital has refused to give.

Secretary McAdoo is not impressed with the idea that the merchant marine could be automatically started by the granting of subsidies or the changing of our navigation laws. "We cannot afford," he says, "to enter upon the scandalous policy of subsidizing private corporations or individuals." He declares that a government owned merchant marine is absolutely necessary for the extension of trade and that we shall never "be able to carry our commerce to the ends of the earth under any foreign flag."

IN MEXICO

Now that the representatives of all the republics of Central and South America are in conference at Washington to cooperate for the restoring of peace in Mexico, it is interesting to review briefly the situation with which they are confronted. This can best be done by a condensed summary of the three or four most powerful cliques and their aspirations. These factions will naturally clamor for the recognition of their respective claims, and the decision of the mediators cannot be intelligently arrived at without considering each and all.

For the present, the constitutionalists or Carranzistas seem to be the most powerful group in Mexico. They claim to possess military control, and though in Mexico the reins of power pass quickly from one leader to the other, the followers of Carranza seem to have might on their side. This faction will therefore claim recognition as the logical governing body, but the protests from other groups will be vigorous.

The Villistas and Zapatistas, comprised of the followers of generals of the name claim on the other hand to be in control of most of the country; these pretend to be zealous for the restoration of constitutional government. Since President Wilson has declared himself in favor of "constitutional government and the rights of the people" they claim that they are the logical masters of Mexico.

The Cientificos or reactionaries, who are openly opposed by President Wilson adhere to the principles of the old regime. Of such is Huerta and others who have been driven out by the revolutionists. These now pretend to favor intervention in order that the methods of Diaz may be restored.

It is said that many of the mediators will be in favor of this last group or the ideals they preach for the time being. In fact, it is mentioned as a possibility that the South American representatives may favor the recognition of Huerta as the man best fitted to end the revolution and restore order. This may be an extreme contingency, but it is interesting to forecast its effect on President Wilson. It is more probable that as the mediators will go more deeply into Mexican affairs than to settle personal and factional troubles, the solution to be suggested may be as yet unthought of.

WAR AND IMMIGRATION

Statistics just published by the bureau of immigration go to prove that the war has practically prevented any increase through immigration in the population of this country for the past year. The average of recent years was cut down more than 95 per cent, and for the comparatively few immigrants who sought our shores, there was an equal exodus. These figures show there is a sound reason for the labor shortage in those centres and industries generally supplied through immigration. During the twelve months ending July 1, immigration was at its lowest since 1899.

The effect of the war on the racial balance in this country is also of special interest. Italian immigrants dropped from 296,414 to 67,217; Hebrews from 138,651 to 26,407; Germans from 19,511 to 20,729; Russians from 44,557 to 4459 with corresponding decreases from all other nationalities. In 1914, the number of admissions over departures was 677,376, this being the resultant increase in the population of the country from this source; in 1915 the corresponding number was 32,940. Thus the war has very effectively accomplished what the anti-immigration agitators have failed to accomplish through congressional action.

What the aftermath of the war will be in this connection is as yet problematical. History has proved that after each war of any consequence in the old world, there is a great rush of immigration to this country, but there are elements in the present war that make an accurate forecast difficult. It may be that immigration will be more than in normal times, and if American business increases to the degree expected, such immigration may be necessary to supply our labor market. On the other hand, there are those who allege that the ending of the war will be followed by such a rush of immigrants from Europe that American labor and social conditions will be endangered to some extent. The problem that confronts this country is the problem of distribution, and this the government is striving to meet satisfactorily.

APPLY THE LESSONS

The unusual weather conditions of the past few months have resulted in many washouts, floods and serious property damage in all parts of the country, that of Erie, Pa., being the most disastrous. There, the waters of Mill creek, swelled by the incessant rains and by a cloudburst, burst the Glenwood dam, poured in a relentless torrent along the low lying sections of the city and swept factory and home before it over a considerable area. The death list may not be yet complete, but sufficient is known to brand the Erie tragedy as one of the worst of its kind in recent years. Besides the heavy loss of life, the private property loss will swell into the millions, and the city has suffered grievously in the destruction of culverts, bridges, etc.

Though the people of Erie have lived for many years in fancied security, it transpires that warnings had been issued some years ago against the danger that has now materialized. Many felt that sooner or later, Mill creek would overflow with fatal results. In 1893 the river had overflowed its banks with some loss of life and since then there have been occasional intimations of disaster. This may all be cleared up in the investigations that have been already set on foot, though investigations rarely do more than satisfy the curiosity of the public.

We of Lowell should feel deeply grateful for the absence of floods. Though situated in a valley and on the banks of a river that has sudden expansions and reductions in volume, we have been blessed by the absence of serious disasters such as that of Erie. It must not be forgotten, however, that occasional warnings have been issued, a disregard of which may at some future time be a source of sorrow. When we read of things such as the Erie flood, we may be more ready to heed the warnings of experts who call attention to dangers or lack of precautions in certain municipal plans. Preliminary caution is far better than an investigation that comes too late to do much good.

FOR BOSTON TERMINAL

At a hearing held recently in Boston before the committee appointed by the last legislature to investigate Boston transportation, with an eye to the rehabilitation of the terminal facilities of that city, many important suggestions were made and a debate movement was set in motion. The hearing was attended by shipper and railroad men from all over New England, as the subject is of vital interest to the business of this entire section. After Boston, it is doubtful if any New England city has a more direct interest in the question than Lowell which is so dependent on transportation for its industrial future. Those who heard the address of John N.

Cole, chairman of the Boston industrial board, before the local board of trade a year ago will readily understand how the matter concerns this city.

Many of the speakers before the legislative committee were in favor of a new terminal on the site of the present Boston and Albany storage yard, connected with the north and south stations by tunnels and with a belt line circling the city for the transportation of freight. It was said that the improvement would call for an expenditure of forty million dollars—a slight outlay as compared with the Grand Central and Penn. terminals in New York, each of which cost in the vicinity of $100,000,000. The proposition is linked with that of the development of the port of Boston, and would mean a great boost to the prosperity of New England. Whatever plan may be ultimately chosen, there is no denying that the freight transportation of Boston is antiquated, and that present conditions are a drawback to all New England.

"I REMEMBER"

Is there any introduction to a monologue that compels more immediate attention than "I remember?" Except when used by the insufferable bore, it arrests the interest of all who hear and acts as a golden key to the door that leads into the magic vistas of the past. When used by the young, it has a quaint and unique charm; when used by the old, it has a certain authority that silences comment and makes all listen in silence. William Rose Benet, a young American poet recently wrote some verses under the title: "I Remember My Mother." The verses are sentimental, but the sentiment is of the kind for which nobody who likes the verses need make an apology. Here are two of the verses that might have been written by all good people, were they as gifted as Mr. Benet:

I remember my mother
In the deep still night-time,
When books were put on the shelves
And toys were put away,
When the moonlight filled my bedroom
And the shadow-time, the flight-time
Of happy, sleepy memories
Reminded the merry day.

The book that always slipped from bed
Was smiled upon and taken.
The clothes that lay both far and near
Were folded on the chair.
And, last, she kissed me lightly,
And her white arms were about me,
And her soft dark hair.

Here is a story about a diplomatic colored waiter also about two well-known Kansas men, who can go by the names of Smith and Jones, just to tell the yarn.

Smith and Jones look much alike and are frequently taken for each other. One day Smith was in a certain big hotel, not a thousand miles from Kansas City and went into the dining room for dinner. The colored waiter, busily brushed off the crumbs and said: "What's how is you, Mr. Jones, how is you?" "I'm glad to see you, I haven't seen you since I waited on your table when you all used to have a little game upstairs."

"I'm afraid you're mistaken," said Smith very quickly. "My name isn't Jones. You have the wrong man." "Nuff said," said the waiter, with much bowing and scraping. "Ah knows all right when to keep mah mouth shut. Ah knows all right, Mr. Jones."—Kansas City Journal.

FROM "THE ROCK POOL"

Bright as a fallen fragment of the sky,
Mid shell-encrusted rocks the sea-
pool shone,
Glimmering the sunset-clouds in its clear heart,
A small enchanted world enwalled apart.
In diamond mystery,
Content with its own dreams, its own strict zone
Of trill woods, its fairy bights and bars,
Its daisy-disked anemones and rose-feathered stars.
Forsaken for a while by the deep roar
Which
Drags down the cliffs, bids the great hills go by
And shepherds their multitudinous paganry—
Here, on this ebb-tide shore,
A jeweled bath of beauty, sparkling still,
The little sea-pool smiled away the sea,
And slept on its own plane of bright tranquility.

A woman's idea of an ideal husband is a husband who is afraid of her.

An old battered empty tomato can isn't worth much. But it is of more value than the kiss one woman gives another when they meet on the street.

It often happens that the same girl who leads all her classes in the gym is so delicate when she is at home that washing dishes would give her nervous prostration.

Some men seem to have been put on earth so that other men could obtain a good living without working.

After all, discretion is merely having sense enough to pick out something you know you can lick when you start anything.

It is all right to knock the living and praise the dead, but if you boost the living and knock the dead you are no gentleman.

Radium is not the scariest thing in the world. The scariest thing in the world is an employer who does not believe that he knows more than the boss.

Why is it that the man who hates kissing so much that he hasn't kissed his own wife for six months will take a change on getting shot trying to kiss some other man's wife?

EFFICIENCY IN NURSING

Hospital Nurses

At a recent meeting of the graduate nurses of St. John's hospital, an address on the advance in the nursing profession, with special reference to the history of St. John's hospital school for nurses, was made by William M. Jones of this city. Following is a brief extract:

In speaking of the alumnae of this school it may not be wholly inappropriate to refer briefly to its early days, and I can do so with some degree of knowledge for I was the house officer here at that time. Twenty-one years ago last November the school was opened with Sister Beatrice as the sister superior and Miss Ellis, a graduate of the Massachusetts General Hospital training school, as superintendent of nurses. The facilities for work at that time were by no means what they are today for the hospital was in a transition stage from the old order of things, the methods of pre-antiseptic days, to the then modern ideas of strict antiseptics. We were handicapped for want of equipment which at that time, even at its best, was extremely crude compared with what we have today. We did have, however, in Sister Beatrice an experienced, able and progressive administrator, determined to make St. John's hospital the very best it could be made and demanding in return that the results should justify her efforts and expenditure. No detail ever escaped my dear old superior. Her eyes and her hands were in everything, operating room, sick ward, out-patient wash room, building plans, superintending workmen, house officer, ward tenders, nurses, matas, patients and friends of patients. This was only a part of her work for on her devolved also the financial management and administration of the institution. Her capacity for work was marvelous, and she was as level headed as she was energetic. Strict to a degree she demanded that everything should move in a straight line, and when we saw her poke up the front peak of her cap, with her forefinger we knew then was a good time to attend strictly to business. She was, nevertheless, absolutely just, and no one who did what was fair with her ever received anything but commendation and grateful recognition. I shall ever remember her as one of the ablest and finest women I ever knew.

The young women of that first class were of superior qualifications and brought rather the zeal of determination than of sentiment into their work. Some of these girls are living, some are dead; some have had life made easy for them, and some have passed through the fires of adversity; but there are none so far as I know, of whom this school may not be proud. This will be a good school indeed if the same can be said of every class twenty years after it has passed from the training into the real struggle of life.

The same principles that govern efficiency in other things will apply to efficiency in nursing except so far as they must be modified to apply to the

peculiar field of operation. Sound health is the first requisite, for without this a nurse could hardly expect to pass successfully through a thorough training, to say nothing of meeting the demands of private nursing should she adopt this as her subsequent line of work. Moreover, the maintenance of her vigor is a serious matter all the way along, for the long stretches when it is impossible for her to obtain sleep at all, or at best for irregular and inadequate periods; unable often to observe a diet she would like, or one compensatory to the demands made upon her vital resources; as well as the often very great physical and mental stress to which she is subjected; all these considerations make endurance a prize necessity, and the factors by which it is sustained, matters for serious thought and care. Ten years would probably be a long average for the active work of nurses, taking them as a whole. Sound physical health, then, with its maintenance is the first requisite for efficiency.

The mental equipment may vary within considerable limits for a high natural ability and adaptability may compensate in some degree for a moderate handicap in the matter of general education. Other things being equal, however, the well educated nurse will have some advantage over her less fortunate sister. Plain, ordinary common sense, and lots of it, is the best mental equipment I know. It will teach her to be neat and orderly and quiet in all her habits, to be tactful and discreet in her associations and communications, to be pleasant without being frivolous or glibulous, to be loyal to her patient, to her doctor, and to herself, and how to meet every situation or emergency to the best advantage. Alertness of mind is, of course, to a large extent a natural gift, but it may well be cultivated for the ability to comprehend and to act quickly is likely to add not a little to her success. So many are the qualities of mind and traits of character which may enter into the making of a nurse that it is practically impossible to discuss, or even to enumerate them. In a general way, sound health, a fair education, a willingness to work, and an abundant common sense, are the essential preliminary qualifications.

From the Sairy Gumps of a former generation to the hospital nurse of 20 years ago was a long step, but this generation has undertaken to help not merely the stricken body but the heightened life as well, whether it has suffered from ignorance, poverty, human weakness, or misfortune. Many are the agencies employed in these various directions, but the peculiar services of the nurse, her natural means of coming into contact with those who need help, as well as her training in the very practical things of life and her cultivated ability to gauge the needs of the individual, make her a

I presume that advances are being made from time to time, in one direction or another, in all the schools, using the best means at hand or to be obtained to meet the cry for ever better service. An instance illustrating the tendency of the times is the arrangement at the Washington university in Missouri, where the training school for nurses and the social service department have been placed under a hospital committee made up of the heads of clinical departments (the laboratory course), and the superintendent of the hospital. Thus instruction and laboratory work are given by men competent in their specialties. The instruction in the nurses' home is given by trained nurses. The English department of the university gives two hours a week of special class work. The probationary of six months is devoted to instruction in the fundamental subjects, a year of elementary ward work and instruction, a year of advanced hospital work and instruction, and a six months' period for special elective training in hospital administration, special technical training, or social service work. There are also two scholarships for post-graduate work.

These are the means by which efficiency in nursing may be obtained at present, and they bear eloquent testimony to the importance with which the work of a nurse is regarded, not only in the restricted field of her individual efforts but also as a widely comprehensive factor in bettering the conditions of the community at large. It is a great work and opens up wide avenues to greater possibilities. Be proud, then, of your profession, as you have good right to be. Be proud of the school which took you in as raw material and sent you out a finished product with the stamp of its workmanship upon you. Excellent as may be the work of the school and of this hospital, their reputation will be helped or injured by the quality of the work that you personally do when you have left its portals. Be proud of yourselves, of your attainments and of your ability to do what other women cannot do. Such pride is justifiable, but it is justifiable only so long as it serves high purposes and keeps within the bounds of a self-respect that compels the respect of others. You are and as you do, so will every other nurse who has been graduated from this school be judged; for so long as you wear the same uniform, and the same pin, your successes or your failures will be reflected upon each and all. Give it to the world, then, the best you have, always trying to make that best a little better. In so doing you will reap your greatest rewards, and attain the highest efficiency in nursing.

Undermined at Lake Massabesic—Tide Carries Furniture of York Beach Family Out to Sea

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 5.—Rivers and lakes in this part of the state are swollen to an alarming extent as a result of the storm. The official records in this city show that the rainfall Wednesday was 2.65 inches.

At Lake Massabesic the southeast section of the Manchester Coal & Ice Co.'s ice house was undermined and collapsed, with the loss of several hundred tons of ice.

Word was received here that the cable on the coast drove the surf at York Beach, Me., so high that the water trapped the family of Mrs. Michael Sullivan of this city in their cottage. They were rescued by neighbors and watched their furniture carried out to sea by the tide.

and filled a suit case which he found there with property of Mr. Killoy. Among the articles said to have been stolen were one pair of pantslions valued at $2, one shirt valued at 50c; two sweaters valued at $2; one pair of tights valued at 25c; one pair of shoes valued at $3 and one suit case valued at $1.50. The goods were brought to this city and disposed of, but later recovered and Weber was arrested after some clever detective work on the part of Officer Cullinan.

The continuance was asked for this morning so that a woman who claims to have been held up Wednesday night could be the prisoner for identification though there is no evidence to connect him with the hold-up. Early Wednesday evening it is claimed that a young man with his face covered by a handkerchief called at the camp of John Silva at Willow Dale and demanded money from Mrs. Silva who answered the knock at the door. The latter called to her husband who was near the camp, however, and frightened the alleged hold-up man away. Weber was held in $300 surety.

Tricks of the Flivver

Because his little Flivver refused to ramble right along and stalled twice on Middlesex street, once on the railroad crossing, David Bourdeleau attracted the attention of a couple of police officers with the result that he appeared in court this morning accused of drunkenness and operating an automobile without a license. He pleaded not guilty to both complaints.

Patrolman Joseph Clark said that his attention was called to the defendant when the latter's Ford was stopped directly on the railroad crossing near the Middlesex street station. There were no lights on the machine, it is said. Bourdeleau was at the wheel and a companion was turning the crank but the engine refused to move and the motions of the pair drew a large crowd. The officers, assisted by some of the bystanders, backed the car off the tracks and he had to be removed to a garage, while Bourdeleau was treated to a ride in the big Thomas limousine known as "Black Maria." Patrolmen Clark and Jerome Cullen testified that the man was very drunk. The latter said an empty beer bottle was found in the machine. He also testified that Bourdeleau offered $1000 for his release without going to the station.

Bourdeleau blamed the Flivver for the trouble. He said he stalled the machine driving up Middlesex street and after turning around and starting back stalled it again. A large crowd gathered and he charged the appearance of the officers. Judge Fisher adjudged him guilty of both offenses, placing the drunk charge on file and imposing a fine of $50 for driving a machine while intoxicated.

A Delinquent Husband

Adolard Calieux earns $12.50 a week and spends the odd 50 cents for baseball pool tickets according to the testimony offered when he was arraigned in court charged with failing to support his wife since July 1, when she separated. Adolard admitted his guilt by pleading guilty to both offenses, placing the drunk charge on file and imposing a fine of $50 for driving a machine while intoxicated.

Mrs. Calieux stated that her husband left home because her 15-year-old son, did not work. She said he is a plasterer capable of earning good wages and spends his money buying baseball pool tickets and shooting craps. She produced a handful of baseball tickets alleged to have been found under her husband's pillow two weeks ago. When the defendant testified in his own behalf he said he was willing to go back to his wife and provide a home if she would only stop drinking; but he objects to beer parties. When questioned relative to the baseball pool tickets he said he purchased two each week for 25 cents each from a resident of Lakeview avenue, whose name he could not recall. He said he had been buying the tickets for many weeks, but yet had failed to win a prize. "I was the fish and somebody else was the resper," he said, when further questioned by Sup. Welch.

Relative to the allegation made by his wife that he shoots craps, Adolard said he got over that long ago and now only buys pool tickets. He said he won some money "once" shooting craps and turned that over to his better half and would have done likewise with baseball pool money provided he had been a winner. He said work is slack now and he seldom gets in a full week but the court opined that he could well afford $6 each week to support his wife. The defendant said that he could not possibly do so but, when told he could have his choice of making an attempt or going to jail, Calieux decided that he would try and was placed on probation.

Nobly Sunday Christening

A Sunday christening during which beer bottles and other weapons were used with human beings as targets was responsible for the presence of Stanley Kapee in the dock today pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault and battery upon Elizabeth Kosiba but after a hearing was adjudged guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $20. He appealed.

Before the trial a woman who was supposed to testify said she did not care to say anything against the defendant, Mrs. Kosiba, her husband and a five year old son were the witnesses for the government. It was stated that all were drinking beer and that Kapee struck Mrs. Kosiba on the head during her a black eye. The complainant said he saw the man strike his wife and also added that his wife assaulted him, the husband, with a beer bottle. Kapee denied the assault but admitted he was intoxicated and could not remember all that happened.

To the State Farm

Michael F. Harrington, drunkenness, was arrested on a capias for failing to pay a fine of $15 and was sent to the state farm. There were a few releases by the probation officer.

PELTON VISITS BROOKS

SPENDS FEW DAYS WITH GARD-NER IN LOWELL

Jerry Pelton dropped into The Sun office yesterday for a short talk. Pelton is the manager of Gardner (Joe) Brooks the local bantamweight fighter, who he is visiting for a few days.

Jerry arrived from New York yesterday to find out if Joe was in the best of health, for a short time ago, on account of boils, Brooks had to cancel a bout with Eddie Campi and Jerry was anxious to ascertain just what was the matter.

But Brooks is feeling fine these days and expects to go back to New York the last week of this month to fulfill bouts which Pelton has in view for him in the big city.

"Joe had Joe couldn't go through with that Campi date," said Jerry, "for I think Joe would have beaten him easily, and then I could have secured a match with Johnny 'Ed' Williams, the champion John Wiseman, the manager of Ebbett's field, where open air fights are held, and the Broadway A. C. saw Brooks wade through Percy Aubrey and once gave me a bout for my charge, the one with Campi, only to have Joe get ill and upset my plans."

Jerry Pelton has only one ambition and that is to crown his protégé king of the bantams. He also said: "Mark my words, Gardner Brooks will be at the top of his division inside of a year if he takes care of himself, which I feel sure he will."

Mr. Pelton told how hard it was to secure bouts for Brooks at the start and how he finally landed him where he is today, feared by every bantam in Philadelphia and New York. He related how he went up to a matchmaker and asked for a date and the matchmaker asked who Brooks ever beat. When Jerry showed his record the matchmaker exclaimed: "nobody around here knows those fighters and therefore he will have to start at the bottom and convince the fans he is there."

Mr. Pelton will stay in Lowell a few days and then go to Boston and try and secure a bout at the Atlas club for his protégé.

DEMON OF NATIONAL LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Hints off to Fred Merkle, the Giants' first baseman, who is now cavorting around in the outfield. Probably no man has been censured by both critics and the public as has Merkle since he broke into the major leagues. But now Fred has the laugh on every one. Since the start of the 1915 season he has played brilliantly in the field, at the bat and on the bases. Right now he is giving Jake Daubert of Brooklyn a great run for the batting honors of the National League. Manager McGraw recently sent Merkle to center field and put Brainard on the initial station. McGraw believes Merkle will develop into a great fielder.

WITH GOVERNOR'S PARTY

cliffes were met in the western states during the trip and according to reports all are doing well.

While in Santa Barbara, Cal., the party visited the grave of one Daniel A. Hill, who was born at Billerica, Mass., and who passed away in 1823. The party visited points of interest in Canada and the states, going as far north as Victoria, B. C., and as far south as Mexico. The trip was one of pleasure and comfort, and the Lowell men are very grateful to the governor and the other members of the party for the courtesies extended during the trip, which developed into a sort of family affair, everybody being made to feel at home. Mr. Pelneault especially praised Governor Walsh, whom he says is a real sport and a very pleasing companion, and it is fair to assume he will be one of the warmest Lowell supporters of his Excellency if he decides to be a candidate again.

The party left Boston in a special coach on Wednesday, July 7, and the first stop was in Pennsylvania, where the mining regions were visited. Then the trip was continued through Pittsburgh and Chicago, the first real reception being at St. Paul, Minn., where Governor Hammond entertained the Massachusetts delegation at luncheon, after which the party boarded automobiles and visited the numerous and magnificent parks between St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Canadian Northwest

The party then visited the wheat regions of Minnesota and North Dakota, where immense fields of wheat extended for miles in length. The crop is reported as being extraordinary this year, and one farmer informed the visitors he expects to raise 25,000 more bushels of wheat than in any previous year. The country was also visited and there the Lowellites saw enough wheat to cover the whole state of Massachusetts. There is a financial depression noted in the Canadian northwest, however, due, it is stated, to the European war.

The next stop was at Banff, Alberta, where the party was awakened at 3.30 a. m. to note the beautiful scenery, this place being the entrance to the Canadian Rockies, and both Messrs. Achin and Pelneault agree in saying they never saw anything so beautiful. Banff is situated at an altitude of 4521 feet, and it is the famous summer resort so extensively advertised by the C. P. R. It is noted for its sulphur springs, and the delegation took occasion for a dip, while in the water they were surrounded by high mountains covered with snow.

Lake Louise and the lakes in the clouds were also visited, and this proved to be the greatest sight of the entire trip. The altitude of Lake Louise is 5632 feet, and from this point burros were mounted and what is known as the lakes in the clouds were seen. The surrounding to the top of the mountains in places is but three feet in width and surrounded by high precipitous cliffs. The trip to the lakes in the clouds is more or less dangerous, but well worth the risk. The next stop was at Field at an altitude of 5190 feet, this being a noted place for precious stones of all descriptions. A move to Glacier House, B. C., was then taken. This is a very important city, its population before the war being composed of 21 souls. Inhabited by men, seven of whom have left their homes to enlist in the English army.

From Glacier the party went to Vancouver, B. C., where all were entertained at luncheon by the American club. A trip through Puget sound on the C. P. R. steamer proved most interesting and Victoria, B. C., which is located on an island, was visited. This city is also noted for its beautiful park system. The next jump was to Seattle, Wash., where the party arrived during the convention of the 23rd degree Masons. The party arrived at night during one of the largest processions in the history of the city, this being under the auspices of the Masons.

The city was beautifully illuminated and the scene was one long to be remembered. The Massachusetts delegation was expected and made arrangements to have the party reviewed by the procession from a specially erected stand. In order to have the party reach the reviewing stand, the procession was interrupted in six different places, and the governor and his party, escorted by a troop of cavalry, reached their destination in time to witness one of the most imposing spectacles they ever set eyes upon.

At the Exposition. At Portland, Ore., the delegates were entertained by the chamber of commerce and the governor of Oregon traveled 400 miles in order to meet the party and extend the welcome in behalf of the state. Siskiyou, Ore., with a population of 13, was next visited. Upon entering the state of California a good view of Mt. Shasta was had, and the party arrived at the exposition grounds on Saturday, July 17. The climate of Frisco was a great disappointment. The city was enveloped with a thick fog from 5.30 to 7 a. m. and in the evening the visitors were forced to wear heavy overcoats.

The chief attraction at the exposition for the Bay State delegation was the Massachusetts building, which is the only exhibit of the New England states. It was there the party learned the cause of the building put in a bid for the purchase of the building after the exposition is over, to convert it into a club building. The Massachusetts club was one of the most important events at the exposition. The attendance numbered several thousand and Gov. Walsh was given a wonderful ovation when he delivered an address that was later referred to as a masterpiece.

Upon entering the exposition grounds the Bay State party was met by seven or eight troops of cavalry and a parade was formed. Gov. Walsh, and Sergeant-at-Arms Pedrick, leading the march and carrying the emblems of the commonwealth. Upon arriving at the gate the party was taken in charge by several regiments of infantry and escorted to the Massachusetts building. The address of welcome was delivered by President Moore of the exposition, and other speakers included Gov. Walsh, Bishop Connaghy of Los Angeles, who became a steady companion of Mr. Pelneault. Gov. Johnston of California was present but did not speak. Mayor Rolf of San Francisco was unable to attend and was represented by his private secretary.

A reception was held in the Colonial room of the Massachusetts building, and during the four days spent at the exposition receptions, banquets and balls were given in honor of the delegation. The republic of Cuba extended the visitors a banquet and the principal speaker highly complimented the Bay State for the great help rendered Cuba in securing her freedom. The daily attendance at the exposition is figured at about 40,000.

The exposition program for the visitors was arranged by Chairman Peter H. Corr and he had the delegation visit the Canadian exhibit the very first, this being noted as the best on the grounds.

Grave of Millerica Man

After leaving San Francisco the party went to Del Monte, Cal., a summer resort and from there to Santa Barbara, Cal., where it was received and banqueted by the Massachusetts club. A trip to the famous Mt. Mission was made. This was not established by the address, a Mexican order of priests, but is now in charge of the Franciscan monks. While visiting the graveyard next to the church the party discovered a tombstone bearing the inscription, "Daniel A. Hill, born in Billerica, Mass., died at Santa Barbara in 1826."

When the delegation returned to the train at night they found the coach literally covered with flowers, while the interior of the coach was a veritable rainbow of the place. Los Angeles and its orange region was visited and at San Diego the visitors were highly entertained by the Massachusetts and New England clubs. The exposition officials set aside July 23 as Massachusetts day and a very elaborate program was carried out. The response in behalf of the commonwealth was given by Speaker Charles H. Cox for Gov. Walsh had found it impossible to make connections from San Francisco. The party was later taken across the frontier to Mexico in automobiles, the place visited being under the control of Gen. Villa.

The deserts of Nevada and Southern Utah were crossed and the party landed at Salt Lake City, where greetings were extended by Acting Gov. Manson, who was also entertaining a delegation from Illinois. Govs. Dume of Illinois, Walsh of Massachusetts and Matheson of Utah, as well as their followers, went for a dip in Great Salt Lake and had several photos taken while sporting in the briny. While in Salt Lake City the great Mormon church was visited by special permission and Michael J. Dwyer of Boston, who is possessed of an excellent baritone voice, rendered several vocal selections, accompanied by the regular church organist on a most wonderful organ.

REP. HENRI ACHIN, JR.

On Monday, July 26, the party arrived at Yellowstone park and after visiting this beautiful summer resort during three days, the Colorado Springs were taken in. The famous Crystal park, the Manitou springs, and the Garden of Gods were the chief attractions. The prairies of Nebraska and Iowa were crossed and the party arrived at Chicago Wednesday of this week. Wednesday evening the flooded district of Erie, Penn., was visited and upon reaching Albany the special coach was taken by force by a group of Boston newspapermen. The party landed in Boston late yesterday afternoon, three minutes behind schedule time, after covering a distance of 12,000 miles.

Westerners Great Boosters. Rep. Achin in conversation with a Sun reporter last evening said the people of the western states are great boosters and boosters. He said Lowell's white way is a toy as compared with some of the lighting systems in the west. "We visited places where the population was composed of less than 25 people," continued Mr. Achin, "and in front of each home was an lamp containing four or more electric lights. The park systems in the west are wonderful."

"During our travels in California and other western states we met scores of former Lowell residents who are doing well. I came in contact with Daniel O'Connell, Esq., a former Lowell boy, who is now one of the prominent attorneys of California, and he wished to be remembered to his many Lowell friends. The scenery of the west is indescribable. Life out there is really worth while, but nevertheless we were all much pleased to return to the old Bay state, and especially were Mr. Pelneault and myself filled with joy when we came through the streets of good old Lowell."

Mr. Pelneault is enthusiastic over his trip. He is loud with praise when speaking about the governor's party, and informed the writer he will never forget his trip to the west with the governor of Massachusetts, Messrs. Pelneault and Achin were met at the North station in Boston when the train arrived late yesterday afternoon by a Lowell delegation consisting of Dr. J. E. Conner, Dr. J. E. Brown and Eugene Lahti and they were conveyed to this city in an automobile.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KELLY'S THEATRE. Keith's theatre was packed on two occasions yesterday, when The Second of Columbus was produced in photo-drama for the first time in this city. The decidedly interesting story, and the fact that Francis X. Bushman had played the character, undoubtedly brought together such large audiences as Bushman is a decidedly magnetic actor, with much of stalwart build and grace, and a face that puts him at the very top notch of male moving picture stars. He appears in the role first brought out by John H. Pomeroy, a senior officer in a cavalry squadron who is sent down to South Africa in the Boer war. He was literally the officer in the squadron next to the senior commander, and the two officers had become fast friends. This continued until after they had wooed the one girl. Then it was that the first in command, "Old Bingham," decided to try trickery to defeat his junior officer. He lied to the girl in the case, and sent him word from South Africa that "Carruthers" had been killed. Later, when he lay seriously wounded, his conscience pricked him, and he made a full confession to the second in command. All of this with one of the prettiest of reconciliation scenes imaginable. The photography of the picture in all its phases, is very wonderful. In addition to the real features there are shown five shorter photo plays, including the usual Chaplin comedy.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

"Rags" is the title of Mary Pickford's latest screen triumph which delighted audiences at the Merrimack Square theatre yesterday afternoon and evening. This play, which was written especially for "the darling of them all," tells of the phenomenal rise of a poor little girl with a drunkard for a father, and living amid the most squalid surroundings to a high social position where she could accept the love of him she loved. Although this play deals with life in the raw, there are many touches of comedy which are delightful and are not out of place, so skillfully have they been woven in. "Rags" together with the genius of "Little Mary" Pickford, is a play which touches the heart strings and causes tears of sympathy to well up in the eyes of the audience. The play will find ready acceptance with the boys and girls who show such determination in the face of so many obstacles. "Rags" will continue to be shown today and tomorrow. Charlie Chaplin, in one of his latest and funniest stunts will make you laugh to your heart's content. The two act play, "Beggars at the Gate," with a Girl a Stake and the educational Paramount Travel Picture will also be shown. All of the performances given at the Merrimack Square theatre today and tomorrow.

CANONICAL LAKE

A big list of amateur Charlie Chaplin fans made a spring contest for three cash prizes in the mid afternoon at Canonic Lake park theatre this evening and the event promises to furnish more fun and amusement than anything that has been staged in this line at the park this season.

Ben Loring and his big Musical Revue, the regular attraction and this big musical show will entertain the audiences by storm this week. The full program runs as follows: "The Awakening of Cleo," Ben Loring, Miss Harriett Moran & Company. "Mother Macbeth," Mr. Edward Healey. "Come On Over Here," Miss Harriett Moran. "Come to the Movies," Mr. Healey and Company. "She Sells Sea Shells," Miss Alice Bagley. "If I Had Someone Like You," Ben Loring and Company. "Dooley's Visit to the Cabaret," Ben Loring and Company. "Carlin's," Miss Harriett Moran. Solo Dance, Miss Frances Lind. "Something Seems Wrong," Harriett Moran and Company.

The last number taken from the musical comedy "The Awakening of Cleo" is making a tremendous hit with the patrons and is in reality the best of the big musical show which has toured the entire country with such tremendous success. The matinee performance start at 2 o'clock and in the evening the curtain rises at 8:15 o'clock, allowing the audience plenty of time to reach the park before the start of the performances.

Special dinners are being served at the restaurant and the management is making extra efforts this season to create a reputation for both the park and its dining room.

LAKEVIEW PARK

Only two days remain for the opportunity of witnessing the performance at Lakeview park of Marvellous Melville—who is appearing as the free outside attraction at Lakeview this week. Melville gives his performance weather permitting, every afternoon at 4 p. m. and every evening at 9:15. For next week, the new and sensational act, Bounding Johnson gives an act on the slack wire that has won him the title of King of the Slack Wire, and his act has been a feature of all of the big outdoor summer resorts for an extended period. Bounding Johnson will give a demonstration on the lake on Thursday afternoon and evening, August 12th of this remarkable invention. Prof. Shepard is now working a submarine destroyer to be operated on the same plan as his wireless torpedo boat which he claims will be the solution of defense from attack by the submarine and which Prof. Shepard expects to demonstrate to the United States government. Prof. Shepard is not in the business of giving public exhibitions and it was only through the intimate friendship with R. A. Ward, park manager for the Bay State Street Railway company that a demonstration of his boat at Lakeview which will be for one day only.

Lowell Men Back From the Panama-Pacific Exposition—Great Praise for Governor Walsh

The Massachusetts club at San Francisco, which is composed of former residents of the Bay state, including several from Lowell, has put in a bid for the purchase of the Massachusetts building at the exposition, the building to be used as a club house when the exposition is over.

The fact that the bid has been submitted is vouched for by Representative Henry Achin and Jean Baptiste Pelneault, two Lowell men who were members of Gov David I. Walsh's party to the exposition. The Lowell men returned last evening and are elated with their trip. A royal welcome was accorded the party wherever it stopped enroute, and at the exposition there was nothing too good for the Massachusetts visitors. Several former Lowellians were seen.

SCHOOL PLANS

Builders Exchange Send Protest to Council and School Board

The Builders' exchange is opposed to the awarding of the contract for the new high school plans and has sent a letter of protest to the municipal council. Members of the exchange believe there are just as competent architects in Lowell as elsewhere and that the council ought not to go over the heads of home architects. If the contract for the plan is argued, went to out-of-town architects the chances are that out of town builders would be awarded contracts and the local builders believe in home industry. The following is a copy of the letter which was handed the mayor yesterday by Alvah H. Weaver, secretary of the exchange:

The Builders' Exchange, 908-909 Sun Building, Lowell, Mass., Aug. 5, 1915.

To the Mayor and the Municipal Council of the City of Lowell.

Gentlemen:—

At a meeting of the members of the Builders' exchange of Lowell held this morning, it was unanimously voted that your honorable body be notified that the exchange protests against the awarding of the contract for the plans of the new high school to an out of town architect. They believe that there are competent architects in the city of Lowell, as can be seen in looking over the other school houses and various buildings about the city, the plans of which were drawn by local architects. Trusting that this will be brought before the council as soon as possible, we remain,

The Builders' Exchange, Nelson D. Keables, Pres., Alvah H. Weaver, Sec'y.

A copy of the letter has also been sent to the school board.

Troops Patrol Flood Section at Erie, Pa., as Result of Reports of Looting—Victims Buried

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 6.—Troopers of the state constabulary patrolled the flood section today and increased forces of workers in their search for bodies, went further into the masses of wreckage piled along Mill creek by Tuesday night's flood.

Sensational rumors of looting during the night kept the police busy, and early today it became known that Guy Fowler, a reporter on the Erie Dispatch had shot a man who was alleged to have been seen taking articles from a house that had been abandoned by its occupants. The man was later taken to a hospital. Other reports of looting could not be verified. An article to the constabulary and the police was to suppress looting with a stern hand.

Efforts to relieve the distress continued. A citizens' committee has been formed to care for those in actual want and more than 100 were fed in the rescue station on State street during the night. The armory housed many homeless and private houses were cared for many others.

Additional offers of pecuniary assistance from outside sources came in but the committee declined all of them, with the assurance that the city could take care of its destitute.

C. A. Emerson, Jr., acting chief engineer and his assistants sent here by the state board of health, faced a hard problem in their efforts to keep down disease. In addition to the bodies of human beings detected to be in the debris it was thought that numbers of cattle, hogs and sheep had been caught in the flood and their decaying bodies would soon become a menace.

The ripping up of sewers and the destruction of the sanitary system throughout the damaged areas caused the engineers to bend their efforts in that direction while inoculation against typhoid fever was carried on with the assistance of the city's health authorities.

Ten funerals were to take place today and several tomorrow. Six of the missing persons reported missing have been located and their names taken from corner Hanley's list.

INJURIES FATAL

Veteran Hit by Undertaker's Wagon Died at Hospital

Charles Herman, the man who was hit and knocked down by an undertaker's wagon in Middlesex street on Wednesday, died at St. John's hospital this forenoon. His injuries were not considered serious and would have been readily overcome by a younger person, but he was 73 years old and quite feeble. It was stated at the time of the accident that the old man walked directly in front of the team. The only perceptible injury at the time was a slight bruise on the head and arm, and was removed in the ambulance to the hospital.

Mr. Herman had been at the Old Soldiers' home in Togus, Me., for some time and was enjoying a furlough in this city. He left the institution on June 11 and was scheduled to return on Sept. 17. It is not known whom he was visiting in this city.

Decreed enlisted in Company F, First Regiment, Massachusetts Infantry in Boston, May 25, 1901, he being at the time, 19 years of age. He was discharged May 25, 1904. Captain George Worthen, superintendent of state aid in this city, wrote the superintendent of the Old Soldiers' home at Togus, Me., this morning for information concerning deceased, and also for instructions concerning the burial. The body has been removed to the funeral parlors of C. H. Molloy & Sons.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Although a few of the war stocks made further gains in the early trading today the market as a whole was irregular and the edge seemed to have been taken off the rise. Bethlehem Steel jumped seven points to 308, a point above its previous high. Other high records were made by General Motors, which rose 5 points to 127, and Willys-Cordell, which rose 1 1/2 points to 41. Industrial stocks rose about a point each but as a general thing price changes were slight. Steel sold at 12 1/2 on a level with yesterday's high. Steel and then reacted a point. Allis-Chalmers, Studebaker and Continental Car were heavy. Railroads were unusually quiet. Lack of definite tone. Stocks were poured out in quantity at the early high levels and professionals who had bought the advance movement hurriedly reversed their position. Later on a number of specialties gave a striking exhibition of independent strength. Crucible Steel was ruled up nearly six points to $3 3/4. Bethlehem also added several points to its initial rise, touching 311. Traders shifted their operations from speculative to miscellaneous shares which had not made an advance commensurate with the rest of the list. Most operators obtained a considerable commission house following by their success in marking up their favorites. Railroad stocks demonstrated their ability to rise when they orders of confidence came into the market. St. Paul, Reading, Canadian Pacific and Union Pacific advanced strongly. The market proved unresponsive to speculative selling after Crucible Steel had mounted to $3 1/2. Sharp reactions brought forth supporting orders and the list again made headway upward. The closing was strong.

BOSTON MARKET

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—A sharp advance in Tamarack to 49 1/2 marked the early trading on the local exchange today. Other stocks were sluggish and Boston & Maine dropped back to 24.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6.—Orders were received at the Philadelphia navy yard today to send 500 additional marines to Port au Prince, Haiti, and to leave here on Monday on the cruiser Tennessee. The cruiser is at the New York navy yard and will leave there probably tonight. The marines who will be under command of Maj. Emmedley D. Butler, will reinforce the 500 sea soldiers sent to Haiti a week ago on the battleship Connecticut.

The orders received today will clear the navy yard of marines and is expected that detachments will be assigned for duty here from other stations along the Atlantic coast.

DANVERS, MASS., WOMAN RECEIVES BLESSING

Mrs. W. H. Brown Tells How She Was Relieved After Long Suffering

Mrs. W. H. Brown of Danvers, Mass., was a victim of stomach trouble which tortured her for years. She had tried many treatments and medicines and got little relief.

Then she took May's Wonderful Remedy and got results right away. In telling of her case she wrote:

"For years I have suffered terribly with stomach trouble. I could find no relief. Then, like a blessing from above, I heard of your remedy; sent for it, and after a few treatments am feeling cured. I am going to tell all my friends of your miraculous remedy."

May's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.

WILL LEACH LYNCHED

TRIPLBY, Fla., Aug. 6.—A mob attacked the jail at Dade City last night, overpowered the jailer and lynched Will Leach, colored, charged with attacking a white girl.

Following the confession Berry was hanged in the presence of about 70 men, all masked, after which the crowd dispersed.

After daylight Berry's body was cut down and removed to an undertaking establishment. An inquest will be held. Since July 11 Berry had been carried from one place to another and finally lodged in the penitentiary at McAlister for safe keeping, it being feared because of the general indignation over what was said to be the delay in bringing Berry to trial, that he would be lynched.

BERLIN OFFICIAL REPORT

FURTHER PROGRESS FOR GERMAN CLAIMS—CAPTURE ALLIED AIRCRAFT

BERLIN, Aug. 6, via London, 4.41 p. m.—The German army headquarters staff today gave out the following official statement:

"In the western theatre: Fighting on and south of Lingeloh continues.

"By means of our anti-aircraft guns four enemy aircraft were obliged to land. One was burned and one was shot down. One French hydro-aeroplane and its occupants fell into our hands.

"In the eastern theatre: In Courland in the vicinity of Popel, northeast of Barwesch and near Kowarsk and Warkle, northeast of Wilkomersk, cavalry fighting took place and went in our favor.

"On the Narva front south of Lomza in spite of stubborn resistance offered by the Russians, the German army made further progress. The Russians fled further the mouth of the Rona and Naddak, where troops have broken through from Novo Georgievsk into the enemy's position south of Mladova. Two are have advanced in the direction of the lower Narva.

"Our cavalry squadron bombarded the railway station and buildings in Ralsviek with bombs.

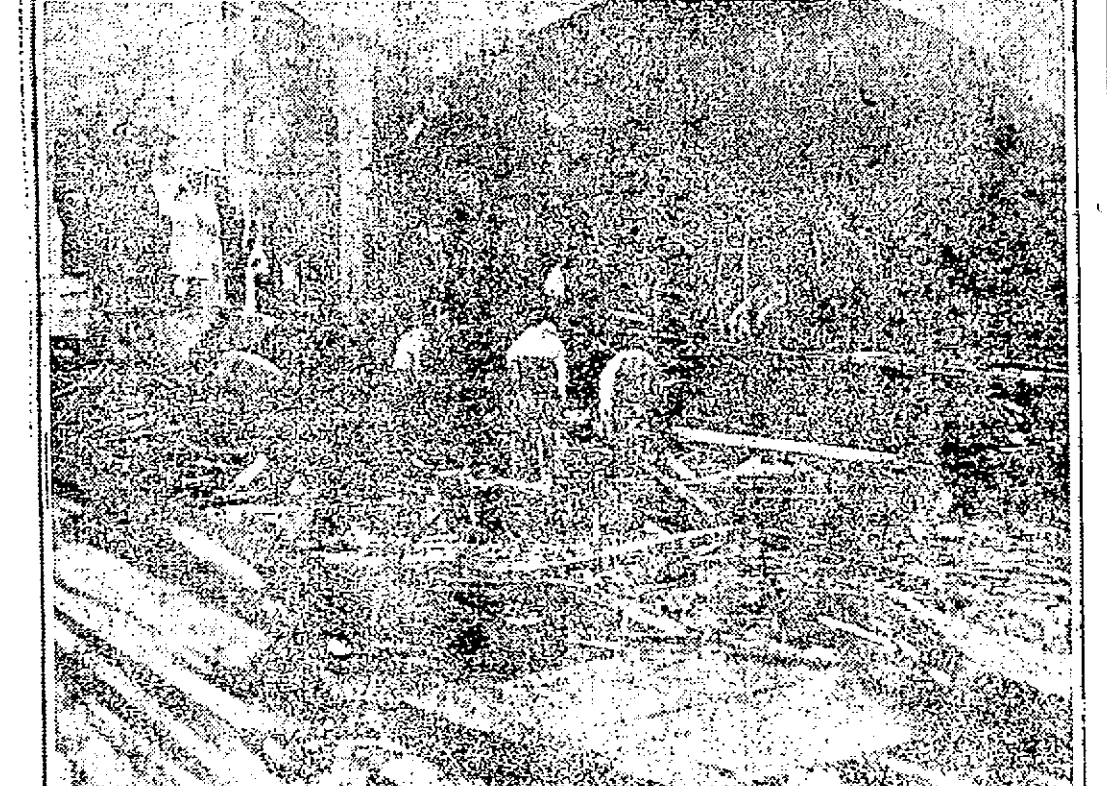

"As mentioned in the daily report issued yesterday, the Russians after had been driven out of the center and inner belt of the Warsaw fortifications evacuated the town and have withdrawn to Praga, on the right bank of the Vistula.

Several hundred families who lost their homes are in temporary quarters, and the state militia is patrolling the flood district in Erie, Pa., where hundreds of men are searching for bodies. Virtually all of the bodies found so far have been identified. Out of one family of six only two children escaped. Jean Higgins, his wife, a fourteen-year-old son and a fourteen-month-old baby being drowned when their house was lifted from the foundations and swept against a culvert in East Sixth street. Fifty business houses and 200 dwellings were swept away. In one house at Seventeenth and French streets there were twelve people when the rush of water took the building from its foundations. Attached to the attic and the house was carried down French street, striking the New York Central overhead tracks. Frank Blocker, one of the occupants, managed to scramble out of a window in safety as the house crumpled against the railroad bridge. After an all night and all day search he was unable to locate any of his companions. In the accompanying illustration is shown the district where the remains of the Higgins family were found; also a scene at French and Sixth streets.

FIND GOLD IN SEWER

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6.—Placer mining for gold in the very heart of the city's business center! Such was the alluring vision suddenly flung before the eyes of a gang of laborers engaged in sewer construction work on 9th street, between Filbert and Arch streets yesterday.

It was established beyond doubt that nearly every shovelful of earth and sand thrown out of the excavation contains gold. And for a time each of the laborers had visions of digging a little deeper and a little further, and then going back to a sunny olive vineyard and living happy ever afterwards.

The glad news was heralded by Walter Scott, an assayer in the employ of a smelting establishment at 290 Filbert street. He took several handfuls of sand from one of the excavations, put it through an assaying process and extracted a quantity of gold.

True, it was a small—a very, very small—quantity, but it was unquestionably gold.

FRENCH DISAPPOINTED RIVER PROBLEM

HAD HOPED THAT WARSAW WOULD BE SAVED—VICTORY NOT DECISIVE

PARIS, Aug. 6, 5.25 a. m.—While the fall of Warsaw had been discounted here some time ago the delay in the capture of the city had given rise to the hope that the Polish capital might still be saved and its occupation by the Germans is something of a disappointment to the French public. The military necessities dictating the abandonment of the city are fully recognized but it also is realized that the Germans will claim a great victory, from which the people of that country will derive much encouragement. The press points out, however, that the victory is in no way decisive because the Russian army remains intact.

As a result of Wednesday's rain and wind storm, a number of motorboats owned by residents of Willow Dale, now lie at the bottom of Lake Massawepic, while a number of wharves have been blown away.

The water has risen several inches, and some of the camps have been flooded. Rowboats were scattered all over the lake, and yesterday the owners were searching the lake for them.

RIVER PROBLEM

Development of Merrimack—$10,000,000 to Cities and Towns

A delegation from the Lowell board of trade waited on Col. W. E. Craig, head of the U. S. engineering department in Boston, yesterday, for the purpose of presenting new data concerning the deepening of the Merrimack river. The delegation consisted of president Robert P. Marden, Secretary

John H. Murphy, Congressman. John Jacob Rogers and Daniel P. Carroll. The conference which had been asked by Congressman Rogers was held at the army engineering office, and the congressman acted as the spokesman for the delegation. He discussed the river plans with the engineer, asking if it were to be understood that the engineer still considered the query as to the commercial value of the river channel as the chief problem. The colonel answered in the affirmative and further stated he considered it of chief importance to be certain that when a channel should be built there should prove to be some suitable amount of commerce using it, and said he would dislike to have the channel built and then find there was no particular use for it.

The congressman pointed out that the residents of the valley had made a supreme effort to collect extra data on the business side of the project and had succeeded in providing the government engineers with what was believed to be facts up to date as to the commerce. He urged it as fitting for the government to spend a proper proportion of the cost of the entire channel even if it could not see its way clear to pay for the whole of it.

The colonel had no hesitation in saying that the valley cities and towns could find it a good business proposition to spend $10,000,000, the estimated total cost of the channel and terminals, on the project. The delegation is now hopeful that the report on the river would not dispose of the project in such a way as to annul the months of hard work on the part of committees in the valley in producing data.

Later in the afternoon the Lowell delegation visited Engineer Russell Sweetland of the New England Insurance exchange and asked that the fire experts hasten their report on the possibilities of utilizing the Locks & Canals' water mains in some way as an adjunct to the city's water supply so as to make it unnecessary to meet some of the requirements for expensive additional fire apparatus.
